"Mame" cast members (l-r) include: Carol Gilchrist as "Vera", Dan Etheridge as "Young Patrick", and Betty Hudson as "Mame".

Beach Little Theatre

Lights to shine on Mame

The musical "MAME" opens at the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach on Friday, February 8 at 8:30 p.m. and will run through March 1 with matinees on Sundays February 17 and 24 at 3 p.m.

"Mame" is based on the novel by Patrick Dennis and the play "Auntie Mame" by Lawrence and Lee. Music and lyrics are by Jerry Herman and the book is by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee.

The title role of Mame is played by Betty Hudson, who was seen on the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach stage recently as the delightful comedienne in "Brigadoon". Mame, who is a "happy happening", is wealthy, lives in New York at the end of the Twenties, and is surprised by a "wonderful present", an orphan nephew named Patrick.

Patrick as a ten year old is played by Dan Etheridge;

Patrick grown older is played by John Spinelli. Agnes Gooch, Patrick's nanny is played by Suzanne Marlowe. Vera Charles, Mame's best friend, is played by Carol Gilchrist. Lindsey Woolsey, Mame's former suitor is played by Walter Haltigan.

Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside, a wealthy southern plantation owner is played by Dave Jones. Ito, Mame's houseman is played by Scott Brinson. There are a number of supporting roles as well as a large chorus and dance group.

The musical is directed by the local television personality Mac McManus, assisted by Jay Justice as Music Director and Judith Hatcher as Choreographer.

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is located at 24th Street and Barberton Drive. Reservations may be made by calling the theater box office at 428-9523.

In Beach economy

Military force stressed

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

"The military is the underpinning of the whole (Virginia Beach) economy," the chairman of the Mayor's Economic Base Study Committee told Council Monday afternoon.

At an informal meeting of Council chairman Timothy E. Barrow presented the committee's report "to assist Council in formulating economic, tax and growth policies as Virginia Beach enters the 1980's."

The reference to the military came on page 18 of the 20-page report which generally sees the next ten years as being harder than the past ten for Virginia Beach.

Because of the military's contribution to the economy of the city, the Committee recommends that Council stress this economic importance and to assist in maintaining the operational integrity of the Air Station at Oceana.

The report points out that in 1977 when the last figures were available, there were 31,700 active-duty Navy personnel, 1100 Navy reservists, 7600 retirees and 6200 civil service personnel residing in Virginia Beach.

Over 104,000 of the City's residents were Navy-connected amounting to almost 47 percent of total population. Direct Navy purchases from Virginia Beach businesses and industries totaled over $175 million and Navy-related off-base retail sales in Virginia Beach totaled nearly $207 million or 45 percent of total retail sales in 1977.

Barrow said that the military and agriculture are the two stabilizing factors in the city's economy.

Agriculture generated over 150 million in salaries and sales in 1978, according to the report which recommends that Council take every action possible to promote the agricultural industry.

Like other reports such as "Virginia Beach Tomorrow," Civic Orientations Toward Selected Municipal Services in Virginia Beach," and in the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, the economic report urges Council to preserve agricultural lands for agricultural production and to discourage encroachment of suburban or exurban uses south of Princess Anne Courthouse.

The most useful tool to accomplish this, the report states, is the land use taxation policy which permits the owner of agricultural land to be taxed on the basis of the agricultural value rather than the market value.

To meet anticipated higher costs of government requirements during the 80's the committee recommends enhancement of tourism and industrial development.

The committee also recommends what it considers a more equitable method of taxation including an income approach to valuation of commercial, office and resort properties. The cost depreciation or comparable sale approaches used in Virginia Beach can result in substantial undervaluation of income-producing properties, according to the report. As a result residential property owners are paying a disproportionate share of real estate taxes.

The committee also urges that the same procedure be used for valuing personal property in all categories. In 1978-79, the report states, automobiles were valued at 90.9 million dollars while all business at $2.3 million and farm property at $408,000.

If special dispensation is to be given any class of property, the committee believes the adjustment should be made through the tax rate, not through the valuation procedure, with the reasons clearly stated.

The committee recommends a phasing out of the utilities tax because it disproportionately affects Virginia Beach citizens who can least afford it. If the "particularly onerous" water tax is retained the formula should be changed so that the larger users are taxed at higher rates and the basic users are exempted, the report recommends.

If revenue growth does not keep pace with necessary expenditure the committee recommends:

• increasing cigarette taxes from 10 cents to 20 cents per pack which would add at least $1.5 million in revenue.

• increase city vehicle license fees from $15 to $20 per vehicle which will yield at least $500,000 annually.

• if other options fail, the city should aggressively lobby the General Assembly for a local "piggy bank" on the State income tax.

This approach would be far more equitable than an increase in the sales tax or a general increase in local property taxes which Barrow said are regressive taxes

Heischober announces candidacy

Harold Heischober, board chairman of Hilltop Motors, has announced his intentions to seek a Virginia Beach City Council seat.

He and his wife Alice live in the Bayside borough of the Beach.

"Other than as a taxpayer," he said after announcing his intentions, "I am not obligated to the City of Virginia Beach nor any of its personnel; likewise, the City nor its personnel are obligated to me."

"I do not seek, and in fact would reject any preferential treatment should I be elected to the council."

Heischober received his bachelor's degree in business from St. John's University, New York; he also attended its school of law.

He is past president of Virginia Automobile Dealers Association, Tidewater Automobile Dealer's Association, and the Chesapeake Athletic Club.

Heischober

He is also a member of the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission; Kiwanis; Disabled American Veterans, chapter 20; Automobile Consumers Action Panel; Virginia Motor Vehicle Dealer Advisory Board; and board member of Tidewater Professional Sports.

He enlisted as a private in the U.S. Army on Oct. 15, 1941; and was discharged as captain on March 29, 1946. He was discharged from the Reserves on July 17, 1967.

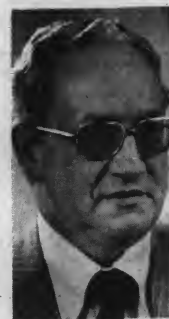

Harper announces intentions

F. Gordon Harper has announced his candidacy for the Beach Borough seat on the Virginia Beach City Council.

In making his announcement he stated that he based his decision to seek this office "on feelings that I should do my part, pay my rent, for the privilege of living in Virginia Beach."

Harper, 46, is married to the former Betty Lou Young and has two children and two grandchildren, all residents of the Beach.

Born in Farmville, Virginia, he moved to this area in 1941. He was educated in Portsmouth, and the Norfolk division of the College of William and Mary. He is part in that the less able are taxed disproportionately. Councilman John A. Baum, remarked that some of the ideas forwarded by the committee would take a courageous council to carry out. "We would almost have to have a moratorium on councilman elections," he quipped.

His civic activities include: Churchland Lions Club, past president and former zone chairman; Oceans Owners Company, president, board of directors.

Council reviews report; indicates a hard road ahead

In his introduction, Barrow said that the report took over a year to prepare. Serving with him on the committee were E. T. Buchanan, E. R. Rockwell Jr., Alfred W. Craft Jr., Rudolph Koch, Thomas J. Lyons, Capt. D. J. Michaels, Herbert K. Smith III and W. Earl Willis.

The Beach, as a new, growing city, has not had to deal with economic stagnation, Barrow said, but that while during the past ten years the city has been able to add services without increasing taxes, the next ten years will produce a different story unless steps are taken.

General government expenditures have increased from $36.3 million in 1969 to $119.9 million in fiscal 1978, a 230.3 percent increase. During the same ten-year period, the population of Virginia Beach increased from 163,410 to 255,770 (a 56.5 percent cumulative increase and the average consumer price index increased by a cumulative 77.9 percent. A comparison of figures shows that local government expenditures have outstripped even the combined impact of population and inflation.

During the ten years, local revenues increased from $37 million to $124.2 million, a cumulative increase of 239.4 percent.

The local share of the total revenues increased by 263.4 percent compared to the federal share of 207.9 percent and the state share of 188 percent. The local increase is important, Barrow said, because local funds are not earmarked for special projects as are state and federal funds.

Nine sources of local revenue accounted for 86.6 percent of the increase — real estate tax, personal property tax, utility taxes, general sales taxes, personal licenses, restaurant tax, hotel room and meal taxes, cigarette taxes and auto licenses.

In addition to its dependence on the military and agricultural sectors, Virginia Beach revenues have come from rapid residential, commercial and tourist growth to improve government services, build new public facilities and maintain relatively low tax rates.

The city has also benefited from tourism on which the return on public investment is high, a surge in commercial and service development and new residential development where developers have underwritten the cost of improvements.

The city also qualifies for maintenance although there is little need for maintenance on new streets and the ratio of school-age children per household consistently declined during the '70's.

Contributing to the Beach's healthy economic situation has been the low percentage of poverty level population, the presence of the Federal government to take over social services costs for many of the lowest income citizens, and the absence of need for expensive housing redevelopment and code enforcement programs because of the city's new housing stock.

During the '80's the city will get some revenue help from the Lynnhaven Mall, the Arts and Conference Center and a change in the state's reimbursement formula to cities for maintenance of highways and financing welfare, health, judicial, administration and police services.

On the other side, the committee sees a reduction in growth revenues.

Business licenses must be rolled back to conform to state law.

The limited amount of beach and undeveloped beach frontage will limit future tourism growth.

While the city has grown by over 56 percent in the last decade growth is predicted at 26 percent during the next decade. There is a national trend toward a reduced rate of movement from central core cities to suburban cities.

Operating Costs will increase as the city ages requiring greater investment in maintenance and replacement.

There will be a continuing need for major capital improvements while at the same time a reduction in federal and state participation is anticipated.

As the populations gets older, there will be more social service costs.

As housing gets older, there will be increasing need for housing and health inspections and some form of public housing program.

Tourism and industrial development

Among committee recommendations for enhancing tourism are:

1. A nine-hole addition to the Redwing Golf Course, the construction of an adjoining 18-hole executive course, the expansion of Owls Creek Tennis Center to include additional outdoor courts, indoor courts and racquet ball facilities and the construction of a marine museum.

2. A market esplanade, similar to the Farmers Market but focusing on a broader range of cottage industry, craft and farm products which may be located on the city's Laskin Road Property in lieu of a proposed commuter parking lot.

3. An upgrading of Princess Anne Park's horse how capabilities.

4. Establishment of an arts and Conference Center Development District to maximize investment in the center.

5. Creation of a new planned resort development zones on the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean to allow resort development while insuring comprehensive site planning, adequate parking and the preservation of key environmental features. The committee recommends the creation of such a zone from Lynnhaven Pier to Lynnhaven Inlet and also for undeveloped portions of Sandbridge. Barrow said that he knew the suggestions would be controversial.

6. Creation of additional day-use beaches away from the commercial resort core.

7. Development of parking structures along the Pacific Avenue corridor.

8. In cooperation with owners in the resort area, the city should proceed with a beautification effort in the resort area.

9. Reinvest the Regional Stadium Authority in cooperation with neighboring municipalities.

Although tourism is the Beach's most important basic industry, the Committee finds that industrial development will play a more important role in the future to make the most of industrial opportunities, the committee recommends:

1. Creation of two new industrial parks by expanding Ocean West Park south and east of Oceana Naval Air Station which would preclude non-compatible development adjoining Oceana. Naval Air Station and expanding Airport Industrial Park southward to incorporate land west of Northampton Boulevard. A corresponding housing program would be necessary to relocate current residents of the area.

2. Create and market a research and technical development park along the Interstate 64 corridor such as North Carolina's Research Triangle.

3. A detailed industrial marketing study.

4. Change priorities for expenditure of Community Development funds from water and sewer line extensions in target neighborhoods to projects which will have a long-term impact on the low and moderate income population of the beach, such as specialized job training paired with new industrial development, direct support for housing programs that will open new areas for job creating development.

5. Continued pursuit of an independent water source.

6. Bring Virginia Beach under the general state laws governing industrial revenue bonding.

Selling the recommendations to the community will be a difficult job, Barrow conceded.

Fort Story, False Cape land swap

A land swap between the Federal government and the State of property in Fort Story and False Cape State Park will be supported in a resolution which will be considered by Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. Monday afternoon suggested the swap at an informal meeting of Council. In a letter to other Council members, he also suggested that if the swap were not agreeable, Council should ask the Federal Government to allow the State to sue Fort Story as a day use beach with the Commonwealth agreeing to keep False Cape in its natural state and that access continue as presently allowed by the Commonwealth and the Department of the Interior.

In his letter, Payne pointed out that the recent announcement by the Secretary of the Department of the Interior indicated that under no circumstances would access to the State Park be granted through the National Wildlife Preserve. The Preserve is located between Sandbridge and the State Park. At present the only access to the park is by foot, bicycle or boat.

The people in Sandbridge, which is in Payne's bailiwick, have objected to access to the State Park through their community.

Payne pointed out that the alternatives are very limited.

Access to Fort Story is certain, more convenient than to False Cape, Payne said, and the combination of Fort Story with the adjacent Seashore State Park could be developed into one of the finest recreational areas in the Commonwealth.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that in light of the world situation, "I don't know whether they'll (the federal government) give up anything."

Councilman John A. Baum said that the city could ask for recreational use with minimal improvements. "It's accessible to a greater number of people and will take less gas than False Cape."

"A Friend Is A Gift of God"

Among the great and glorious gifts our heavenly Father sends is the GIFT of UNDERSTANDING THAT we find in loving friends, For in this world of trouble that is filled with anxious care Everybody needs a friend in whom they're free to share The little secret heartaches that lay heavy on their mind, Not just a mere acquaintance but someone who's "JUST OUR KIND" For, somehow, in the generous heart of loving, faithful friends The good God in His charity and wisdom always sends A sense of understanding and the power of perception And mixes these fine qualities with kindness and affection So when we need some sympathy or a friendly hand to touch Or an ear that listens tenderly and speaks words that mean so much, We seek our true and trusted friend in the knowledge that we'll find A heart that's sympathetic and an understanding mind... And often just without a word there seems to be a union Of thoughts and kindred feelings for GOD gives TRUE FRIENDS communion. -Helen Steiner Rice

Rising hospital costs causes Medicare benefits to increase

Because of the rising cost of hospital care, the hospital insurance deductible and daily co-insurance amounts under Medicare have been increased for 1980. The law requires an annual review of hospital costs under Medicare and an adjustment of the hospital insurance deductible when costs have risen substantially. The amount of the deductible represents the average cost of one day of hospital care, which is determined by a formula provided in the law.

Effective Jan. 1, the hospital insurance deductible is $180, up from $160 in 1979. This means that for the first through 60th day of inpatient hospital care in each benefit period, Medicare hospital insurance will pay for all covered services except for the first $180.

Higher deductible

Because of the rising cost of hospital care, the hospital insurance deductible and daily co-insurance amounts under Medicare have been increased for 1980.

The law requires an annual review of hospital costs under Medicare and an adjustment of the hospital insurance deductible when costs have risen substantially. The amount of the deductible represents the average cost of one day of hospital care, which is determined by a formula provided in the law.

Effective Jan. 1, the hospital insurance deductible is $180, up from $160 in 1979. This means that for the first through 60th day of inpatient hospital care in each benefit period, Medicare hospital insurance will pay for all covered services except for the first $180.

Higher deductible

The higher deductible which start for 1980 applies only to benefit periods which begin in or after January 1980. The 1979 deductible, $160, applies to benefit periods which started in 1979. This is true even if you entered a hospital in 1979 and are still a patient after January 1.

When the hospital insurance deductible changes, the law requires comparable changes in the daily dollar amounts (co-insurance) that Medicare hospital insurance does not pay.

For the 61st through 90th day of inpatient hospital care in each benefit period in 1980, hospital insurance will pay for all covered services except for $45 a day (up from $40).

If you need to be in a hospital longer than 90 days in a benefit period, you can use the inpatient hospital reserve days provided by hospital insurance. For each reserve day used this year, hospital insurance will pay for all covered services except for $90 a day ($80 a day in 1979).

For the 21st through 100th day of post-hospital care in a skilled nursing facility, hospital insurance will pay for all covered services except for $22.50 a day (increased from $20). Hospital insurance pays the full cost of covered services for the first 20 days of care in a skilled nursing facility.

After a stay in a hospital or skilled nursing facility, hospital insurance can cover home health care from a participating home health agency.

100 visits

Hospital insurance can pay the reasonable cost of up to 100 home health visits after the start of one benefit period and before the start of another.

Although hospital insurance does not pay all your health care costs, it does provide basic protection against the high cost of illness at a time when you need it most—after you are 65 or while you are disabled.

More information about hospital insurance is given in Your Medicare Handbook. If you don't have a handbook, you can get one at any social security office. The Norfolk office is located at 200 Granby Mall in the Federal building, Room 600. The phone number is 441-3401.

72 acres in Seatack appraised high

Coincidentally, the Mayor's Economic Base Study report, presented on Monday, calls for further negotiations with the commanding officers of the city's ocean and bay front military installations to actively pursue the opportunity to cooperatively develop public day-use beaches on portions of military installations. "The city should also continue to support the concept of Fort Story as a major regional day-use recreational park as proposed in 1977 by the Virginia Beach Development Council, now the Virginia Beach Research and Advisory Council.

Airport zoning requested

Virginia Beach City Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland Monday afternoon asked that a proposal to establish some type of airport zoning be referred to the Planning Commission and Planning Department for consideration.

Capt. Daniel Michaels of the Naval Air Station, Oceana, last November suggested the zoning be considered to discourage residential development in noise and danger zones surrounding the Air Station. Holland said that he did not think that when the government steps up its defense spending it would be buying air rights but would be using its resources for men and equipment.

He suggested Council consider the matter at next Monday's Council meeting.

The Mayor's Economic Base Study Committee report released Monday recommended that every effort be made to reach a mutual understanding of the impact limits of Oceana operations and the parameters for land use inside these limits. Once understood, these parameters should be incorporated in an Airport Impact Zone, the study recommends.

The report also recommends that the city through its elected representatives and the Navy through its local and fifth Naval District Commands should work aggressively for the immediate full funding of the NAS Oceana Air Installation Compatibility Program (AICUP) which involves easement and development rights purchase.

Land appraised high

A 72-acre tract in Seatack purchased by the City of Virginia Beach for $500,150 last April was actually appraised at $1,000 an acre more than city paid, city manager George L. Hanbury told City Council Monday afternoon at an informal session.

A borrow pit will be operated on the site to provide sand for the beach replenishment program.

Council Donald Merrick questioned the discrepancy between the $4,000 an acre value of the property set by the city real estate assessor and the purchase price of approximately $7,000 an acre by the city.

"I wish we could buy land for what the assessor assesses it for," Hanbury replied.

He said he had the land appraised by an independent real estate appraiser who "appraised the land for $1,000 an acre more than we bought it for."

Merrick, noting that he voted for the land purchase along with all the other Council members present that day, said, "I don't want to buy any more land unless I have the city's appraised value and the assessor's value."

Hanbury said that it was the "cheapest offer in the area." He pointed out that there were few property sales in the area in which the assessor could base his assessments but that now the city has established a value which will increase assessments — and taxes — in the area. He added the city had no other alternatives. Hanbury said he never recommended a land purchase without one independent appraisal.

The borrow pit site includes a 30.68-acre tract purchased from the Dean S. Potter estate and a 41.37-acre tract purchased from A. Stanley Mundy and Company. The independent appraiser appraised the tracts at $260,000 and $33,500 respectively for a per acre cost of approximately $5,000 an acre. The appraiser's estimate was included in the appropriation ordinance approved by City Council last April.

To clarify circumstances leading to the purchase of the property, however, Robert Langley, a member of the engineering firm of Langley and MacDonald, consultants to the Erosion Commission, presented an update of the 1972 Erosion report regarding sand replenishment.

The report recommends a continuation of the beach maintenance program adopted 27 years ago and the

Whitehurst speaks to business group

Congressman Bill Whitehurst will be the featured speaker at the February 14 meeting of the Virginia Beach Christian Businessmen's Fellowship luncheon, according to Captain Warren Grant, Commanding Officer of the Spot Bureau of Va. Beach Police and one of the founders of the New Christian Businessmen's Organization.

Congressman Whitehurst will be sharing his testimony at the meeting scheduled for 12 noon at the Western Sizzlin Steak House, Laskin Road, at Hilltop.

According to Grant, the Va. Beach Christian Businessmen's Fellowship was founded January 1 "for Christian businessmen to come together and share ideas and suggestions for the improvement of the community as well as fellowship together and share their Christian experiences." Founded by Grant and local businessmen Jimmy Hall and Joseph Exum, the group meets each Thursday at the Western Sizzlin.

No reservations are required. Those seeking more information may contact Warren Grant at 427-4606.

Exercise and Physical Fitness

Your Healthy Body

Janeta Jannone,
Virginia Beach Professional
Dance and Exercise Instructor

Exercising discussed; leg stretching, time considered

Dear Janeta,
I have just recently begun to exercise and find I am very sore on the day following an exercise session. I am told that if I am not consistent in my exercising, I will lose much of the benefits to be derived, but because of the soreness, the incentive to be regular is not there and I feel like I am fighting a losing battle.

Could you please tell me if there is anything I can do to take this soreness away or even better to prevent it, and also if I am consistent with what I am doing, will this stop happening in due time? Thank you.

Betty Heikemper
4611 Edwardian Ct. Va. Beach

Dear Betty,
What you have described is a very common "beginners syndrome", and is probably the prime reason for such a high drop out rate in the first few weeks of an exercise program.

This "beginners syndrome" is friction by a build-up of lactic acid in the muscles from the body is not used to, and can be greatly minimized by approaching your exercise program in a slow even manner and never forcing your body to do something it is not ready for. In addition, rhythmic breathing should always accompany movement, as oxygen not only aids an internal combustion that takes place within the body when it is motion, but also gives renewed life to fatigued muscles and helps to break down and eliminate excess lactic acid, the source of your complaint.

Another technique that will help with this problem is to give the body a nice languid stretch at the end of your session, and relax yourself as completely as possible, even if only for a few moments. This is very important, as one should never walk away from any type of body movement with tensed muscles.

Doing this will only tend to lock the acid within the cells of the body thereby aggravating the condition you're trying to avoid. If you find that after following these techniques you're still slightly sore, which is very likely in the beginning, try a hair of the dog that bit you. Do some simple stretching with rhythmic breathing, and you will feel greatly relieved, as this will work the acid out of the muscle structure. And yes, you do have to be consistent to achieve results from your endeavors, but if you are, this "beginners syndrome" will eventually disappear as your body adjusts to its new regimen, and I'm sure you will be more than pleased with the new more alive you that will emerge from your efforts. Good luck!

Janeta

Leg exercises

Dear Janeta,
I would like to know if there is one good all around leg exercise. I have been doing several different exercises for stretching and several for strengthening, and different ones for different parts of the leg.

My schedule is very tight and all these different exercises are time consuming, not to mention boring, and because of this I'm sometimes reluctant to include them in my daily routine. I would appreciate it if you could help me out.

Sincerely,
Nancy Nelson
507 Cold Spring Rd. Va. Beach

Dear Nancy,
One good overall toning exercise is to lie flat on your back with knees up and apart. Grab hold of your ankles on each side of your buttocks and tense all the muscles in your legs and buttocks as hard as possible.

While holding your ankles and the tension, breath in and slowly lower your right knee to the inside as far down as it will go, but do not force, then exhale and simultaneously relax the muscles. Tense once more and hold. Breath in and lower the left knee to the inside while raising the right at the same time. Exhale and relax. Repeat ten times in the beginning and work up to twenty repetitions.

This exercise is both isometric and isotonic and will if done on a daily basis help the entire leg become strong and limber, much like a cat. Remember to always take your time, use control and keep your routine simple. One exercise done properly is worth more than ten done wrongly. Hope this helps you out.

Janeta

• DO NOT close off attic vents because there will be problems with moisture.

• Do close off the vents under the house in the winter; open them in the summer.

• When insulating, the vapor barrier (the craft paper or foiled back side) should go toward the warm wall, not to the outside.

• Caulk around all windows and doors, even on a brand new house. Such leaks are the biggest energy losers of all.

• Plastic storm windows work as well as glass insulation. It is the dead air space which counts.

• Install a glass shield in front of the fireplace. Without the shield, you lose more heat than you gain even when the fireplace is burning.

• Put a flow restrictor on the shower head to cut hot water consumption in half.

Home energy cost-cutting clinics offered by Beach TCC

The Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College cooperates with the State's Division of Energy to offer "Home Energy Cost-Cutting Clinics" in our local community. This year, alone, Charley E. Wilkerson, who teaches air conditioning and refrigeration on our campus, has conducted eight energy clinics in Virginia Beach for the Energy Division. Other qualified TCC faculty members also have participated in the state's program.

The clinic, which is free of charge, consists of a slide presentation covering the steps the average homeowner can take to conserve energy and reduce utility bills. Mr. Wilkerson follows the slide presentation with a question and answer session. Each participant also receives a free energy packet with pamphlets and information on such things as "Home Heating," "Energy Tax Credits" and "Hot Water Handbook." If participants feel they have a need for further clarification, they are welcome on our campus. Mr. Wilkerson uses our equipment here to give interested persons an even clearer understanding of his operation.

The State prefers to schedule clinics for groups of 50 or more. Any group can request a clinic by calling the Virginia Energy Division's toll-free number: 1-800-552-3831. In addition to scheduling clinics through the hot line, callers may get answers to their energy questions or borrow audiovisual materials, among other services.

In the meantime, Mr. Wilkerson has offered to share with you some of the energy tips he thinks are most important and which he has tested himself:

• NO NOT set back the thermostat on an air-to-air heat pump at night. DO set back gas, oil and electric furnaces.

• A properly-scheduled clock timer on a hot water heater saves energy and does not radically change your lifestyle.

Your summer boat

Winter good time to buy

By ED LEWIS

Virginia Beach Sun Outdoors Writer

When the temperature drops down to the low 30's and the winter skies are frequently grey with overcast, many dispondent boaters are wondering why they are still making payments on the old tub sitting on the trailer in the backyard. Especially when they don't know why they bought the darn thing anyway.

Most people who feel like this probably went out on a fishing or skiing trip with a friend who owned a similar model and as soon as their feet hit the shore they had to rush down to the nearest boat showroom and by the fanciest one on the floor.

Make sure the price is right

Well it's people like this that make it easier for pro like us to find some great deals. When you purchase a boat this time of year you have everything in your favor to insure that the price is right.

Some people will be behind on their payments because they find it hard to pay for it when they are not using it. Someone in this position will probably let you have it for what they owe on it, just to get the lien holder off their back.

Of course there are the boat owners that have found it more of a chore in upkeep than they had bargained for and that just supports their reasoning on why they want to get rid of it.

Some of the best places to look for the mid-winter deals is the classifieds, autotrader, for sale signs at marinas or in driveways and of course from some of the local banks repossession departments.

If you are looking for a new boat you may still be able to find some of last year's models still on the showroom floor and be able to pick up on a better deal than you would if you waited until the new models were all they had left. Many times when you purchase the previous year's model you will still get a full warranty with it.

What will you use the boat for

When you go out looking for a boat, here are a few things you might want to keep in mind to help guide you to the right one. First think about what you will be using it for, water skiing, fishing, etc.

If you want it mainly for fishing you should first consider how large your family is. You want to be able to carry them and the equipment you will need safely. So when looking at the boat, check the manufacturers tag for the load recommendations.

Next you need to decide on the how much power you want. I see many boats out on the bay with almost as much motor as they have boat. If you want the boat for fishing don't over power it. Larger motors cost more, burn more fuel, and weigh more.

With todays cost of fuel, the smaller motor could mean more fishing trips, and besides you won't see that many days on the Chesapeake Bay where you can open up those big motors and fly, unless you want to beat your boat to pieces on the chop.

Buying a used boat

If you are buying a used boat from a private owner, here are a few things you might want to check to help determine if the boat has been properly taken care of. Of course the general appearance will tell you a lot but there are hidden areas where poor maintenance by the first owner might cause you problems.

One thing you might do is ask him to hook up the fresh water adaptor so you can start the engine. If he doesn't have one, you can be pretty sure that the engine didn't get the salt water flushed out of its cooling system after each use.

Next you might want to check the back side of each of the trailer wheels for rust. If there is an excessive amount, it is a good indication that he didn't rinse his trailer off after each use.

Check the fin at the bottom of the lower unit to see how much it is worn or chewed up. This will tell you if he has been running her in shoal water alot and possibly damaged the gears.

Remove the hood (cover) on the engine. If the engine-paint is discolored or blistered it is a good indication that the motor has been run hot.

Check to see if the grease around the fittings and moving parts is dried or still in its proper form. This will give you an indication if the motor has been getting proper lubrication.

Try it out

Of course you still want to try the rig out. Don't settle for running on the fresh water adaptor. Take it out and run it at all speeds. Check to see if you have a good stream of water coming out of the exhaust.

When coming back in, watch to see if the present owner disconnects the fuel line and lets the gas burn (See, CHECK, p. 10)

In re: Lisa Michelle Riddick

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this proceeding is the termination of the residual parental rights of Ronald Riddick, father, and Bradley Hansen, putative father, and Victoria Riddick, mother to their child, Lisa Michelle Riddick.

The consequences of termination of residual parental rights are that a parent or parents forever relinquish all parental rights such as, but not limited to, the rights to companionship, association, religious training, education, discipline, guidance, maintenance and all decision making concerning the child's welfare. And further it is to commit said infant to the care and custody of the Virginia Beach Department of Social Services with the right of said agency to consent to the infant's adoption.

And an affidavit having been made and filed that Ronald Riddick, father, and Bradley Hansen, putative father, and Victoria Riddick, Mother, are proper parties to this proceeding; but due diligence has been used to ascertain in what county or corporation he is, without effect, it is ORDERED that Ronald Riddick, father, and Bradley Hansen, putative father, and Victoria Riddick, mother to their child, Lisa Michelle Riddick, appear before this Court within ten (10) days after publication of this Order and indicate their attitude toward the proposed adoption, or otherwise do what is necessary to protect their interest in this matter.

out of the carburetor. If he does, it is a good indication that he knows what he is doing in properly maintaining his motor.

If you already own a boat, the best time to prepare it for the coming season afloat is before it actually arrives. Things that will need replacing or repairing can be taken care of over a period of time, instead of having the burden of the expense dropped on you all at once. Items that need painting or varnishing that can be removed can be taken care of in your garage or basement.

Check your equipment

While you have leisure time indoors, don't forget to check off all your equipment against a check list to see if any of it is missing. If it is you will still have a month or so to replace it. It is much easier to attend to all these things at a deliberate pace during the off-season than to wait until the spring rush.

Several things you can do to get your outboard motor ready to replace your old spark plugs with new ones. Inspect your fuel tanks for dirt, gum or varnish.

Dirt can be removed by using a syphon hose to "vacuum clean" the bottom of the tank. There are solvents on the market to remove the gum and varnish. Check the oil in the lower unit for water. If it is present, your lower unit seal might need replacing. Check your propeller for damage, and have it repaired or replaced. A damaged prop can cause vibrations that can damage gears, and bearings.

If you have some tips on reading the boat for the up coming season or just tips that you would like to pass along. Please send them to me care of the paper.

Council requested to replenish sand purchase of the two parcels to be used for borrow pit operations. Five other South Birdneck sites were considered but eliminated for various reasons — not enough fill would be available, the property was not for sale or the asking price too high or the ecological impact would be adverse.

Hanbury also recommended that the Erosion Commission should have two goals — to replenish the beaches and to keep Rudee Inlet open. He said that in the past the Rudee Inlet dredging was done mainly to furnish sand for the beaches to the north. He said that the Commission's dredge would be adequate to keep the inlet open if it were not further taxed to supply sand, to the beaches. The dredge should be restricted to dredging the inlet and dumping the fill. The truck haul operation from the borrow pit would be responsible for replenishing the beach.

Sand replenishment requested

Both the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission and the U.S. Corps of Engineers have recommended an increase in sand replenishment on the ocean front this year which will add $110,000 to the city's $647,000 contract with the E.V. Williams Co.

Williams submitted the low bid on a project to clear, strip and haul sand to the beach from a city-owned borrow pit off Birdneck Road. The original bid of $772,000 was reduced through negotiation by $15,000 and further reduced another $110,000 by reducing the total amount of fill for this year from a proposed 150,000 to 125,000 cubic yards.

The reductions would make it possible for the Erosion Commission to do the job within its budget. The increase in fill would require a special appropriation from City Council.

City manager George L. Hanbury told Council Monday at an informal session that he would recommend that the city continue placing 125,000 cubic yards on the beach as it has for the past several years and to reevaluate the situation and make the necessary adjustment the following year.

Jim Melchor of the Corps of Engineers, said, however, that the whole 150,000 cubic yards should be placed on the beach this year.

Noting that the Corps supports 50 percent federal funding for the sand, Hanbury said, "If the Council would like we would have to consider a special appropriation."

Councilman John A. Baum said, "We'd be taking a calculated risk if we don't approve the addition."

Beach Hostage Crisis Center

Sun Commentary: Local HCC

Emotions and patriotism ran deep last Saturday morning as approximately 50 local residents sang "God Bless America," following former P.O.W., and Virginia Beach resident, Michael Christian's press conference. It was held at the White Heron Motel to promote Virginia Beach's new Hostage Crisis Center, (HCC).

Christian has taken it upon himself, along with the support of other local individuals and businesses, and of state and national political and military leaders, to organize:

"A common vehicle for those who are frustrated with the hostage situation, and wish to focus their agencies into a national voice of concern, without regard to political affiliation or specific foreign policy recommendations."

Christian says the HCC is not an answer to the hostage situation in Iran, but "a place for interaction of concerned citizens."

Christian accuses American officials of being "nice people who will give six months warning before doing anything," in regard to Soviet and American relations.

He further says it's important to keep the hostage issue alive in the minds of American citizens, "We don't want the U.S. to sit in front of the television and do nothing," he said.

Critics of Christian ask: "What good will he, or his meetings do in securing the release of the hostages?" Supporters retort: "A common display of emotion is rare; and Christian's HCC serves as an outlet for many Americans who are outraged and angered by foreign actions against Americans."

Christian's efforts are innocent, and serve to relieve the tensions of many frustrated local residents. Plus, he is actually doing more, relative to the hostage situation than many of us.

Christian has been to war and back, and knows its horrors. He does not want to see more killings, and is doing the best thing he knows to do in light of the circumstances.—G.G.

To give your views on the hostage issue, gain information, or volunteer time, call the HCC at 428-8111, extension 42.

Beach snow

25 inches in 10 days

By GREG GOLDFARB

Virginia Beach News Editor

February is traditionally one of Virginia Beach's coldest months of the year.

But this year, Mother Nature has been unusually cruel to local residents; with temperatures nearly nipping the Fahrenheit scale at zero, and snow laying in some areas up to our elbows.

It began to fall

Virginia Beach residents saw this season's first snow begin to fall Wednesday, Jan. 30 at 11:37 p.m. and continued until 12:30 p.m., Jan. 31.

Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Norfolk all reported four inches accumulation.

And kept falling

On Wednesday, Feb. 6 at 9:03 a.m., Virginia Beach saw its second snow show of the year, and its first of 1980, dumping 15 inches of the white stuff in Virginia Beach, 14 in Chesapeake and 12 in Norfolk. It didn't stop until 2:40 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 7.

And falling

Last weekend the third crystalized rain of the season began at 1:05 p.m., on Saturday, Feb. 9 and didn't end until Sunday, Jan. 10 at 9:40 a.m. Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Norfolk all reported about six inches of accumulation.

Take your own readings

National Weather Service meteorologist Terry Ritter said that snow accumulation measurements vary from place to place; consequently, Chesapeake residents in their own backyard can measure snow fall almost as Strong winds and heavy snow forced most area motorists home hours early from work; still many were caught helpless in winter's frozen grip and had to spend the night at local hotels. These motorists with their headlights on are heading west on route 44 towards Norfolk. Photo by Greg Goldfarb.

Fort Story use considered

Beach to get more beach

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach City Council proposes using Fort Story as a day use beach in a resolution approved Monday afternoon.

In the resolution, Council asks that the Department of the Interior and the State Council on Outdoor Recreation consider exchanging False Cape State Park for Fort Story. If this isn't acceptable the resolution suggests that the Federal Government allow the state to use Fort Story as a day-use beach so that False Cape State Park can be kept in its natural state.

Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. suggested the resolution on Feb. 4, noting that the government has virtually barred access to False Cape by forbidding access across the National Seashore State Park which lies between Sandbridge and the State Park. Sandbridge residents also have objected to access to the park through their community.

If a land swap is not acceptable, the resolution presents an alternative - that Fort Story be used as a day-use beach and False Cape be kept in its natural state.

Although some misgivings were expressed over the eventual outcome of the request, the nine members of Council present voted unanimously for the resolution.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that it might be better to ask for the use of "suitable portions."

Councilman Meyer Oberndorf said that she was uncomfortable requesting that the Federal Government be asked to declare the property excess in view of the present world situation.

Payne said that Congressman William Whitehurst's office has indicated that this would be a good time to pursue the matter.

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., said "We're asking for more than we expect. Why not let them make up the alternatives?"

30th Street gets restrooms

Even without a sundial, the proposed 30th Street public restrooms on the beachfront seem to be too expensive for several Virginia Beach City Council members.

But the pro-restrooms won out Monday afternoon by voting 5-4 to close a portion of 30th Street to provide space for the restrooms.

In a 6-3 vote Council awarded the contract for the project to Apex Building Contractors, Inc., low bidder of four, for $166,000.

The restrooms will be the second constructed by the city one the beachfront. The first are located on the 17th Street right of way and boast a sundial which evoked criticism as an unnecessary expense.

A third set of restrooms is contemplated for 37th Street.

The sundial was suggested by John A. Maddox, owner of the Seascope Motel, who agreed to give up his claim to the closed right of way if the project were aesthetically pleasing and would enhance rather than detract from his property.

The .114-acre portion of 30th Street which will be used for the restrooms is located south of the Seaside Amusement Park and north of a h-2 Resort-Hotel District property that is undeveloped.

Councilman Reid Ervin, who voted against the closure and the contract award, said he knew of "no way public restrooms will enhance property."

Although the 30th Street restrooms will be less elaborate than the 17th Street project - and will not have a sundial, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., said the city was spending too much money on the restrooms.

McCoy also cast the only vote against the 17th Street restrooms in a 10-1 vote of Council. That contract was awarded to Ingham & Associates for Public services expand

Citizens study Beach's tax base

By LIN COOPER

Special to the Sun

The citizen study panel that has been examining the city's tax base and funding needs has come to some firm conclusions.

One of the key observations the committee has made is that the phenomenal growth of the city over the last 10 years has provided a tax base that has allowed Virginia Beach to expand public services with no comparable increase in the real estate tax rate.

The committee further concluded that any slowdown in the growth rate, both commercial and residential, might well mean that there would be insufficient tax dollars available for the city's future needs. With the anticipated need for revenues to more than triple by 1990, it is readily apparent to most observers that the city must continue to grow.

$160 million in construction

Last year in Virginia Beach permits were issued for a total of almost $160 million in residential construction up just slightly, $1.8 million, from 1978. This slight increase, less than the three percent City Manager George Hanbury anticipated as healthy for the city's economy, reflects the dampened housing market due to inflation and high interest rates.

The construction of 200 new homes a year has a tremendous economic impact on an area, far beyond the dollar worth of the structures themselves.

The buildings of 200 new homes in one year generates a total of $13.6 million including the money spent for the raw land, for land and site improvements, for the 370 workers who are employed for a full year, materials, mortgage interest, real estate taxes, permits, closing fees, home furnishings, and related goods and services.

It seems true that the construction of residential housing must pick up speed in order to meet the increased housing needs that population growth requires and the future revenue needs the city requires.

High interest rates

High interest rates have frightened many prospective home buyers. The mortgage lending industry is presently asking the General Assembly to consider authorizing the use of rollover mortgages, mortgages whereby the interest rate is renegotiated at intervals depending upon the rate current at the time. Such creative financing may be the only way that thousands of future Beach residents can afford to buy new homes, thus assuring the city of a viable private housing industry.

It will be the challenge of the industry and the city to define, channel and promote intelligent growth in the 80s.

"The Fishing Lesson" - John Fahey

Beach resident

Fahey's pics entered in show

Two of Virginia Beach resident John Fahey's photographs, titled, "Patterns" and "The Fishing Lesson", have been selected for exhibit in the 1980 Minneapolis - St. Paul International Exhibition of Photography.

Fahey's photographs will be exhibited in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minnesota from Feb. 17-24. This is the second consecutive year that his photography has been selected for the Minneapolis - St. Paul exhibit.

During the coming months Fahey plans to enter international photography competition in Illinois, Massachusetts, and Oregon.

Fahey, a faculty member at Old Dominion University, resides with his wife, Barbara, a watercolorist, in Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach activities and social events

Art's center show planned

Many members of the Virginia Beach Arts Center, which originated as a way to show art work, are themselves artists. Each spring they hold their annual Members Show at the Dome.

The winners from the 1979 Members Show will be exhibiting their recent work at the Virginia Beach Arts Center from February 5-28.

Last year's juror was Robert Mayo, former director of the Valentine Museum in Richmond. He selected works by Virginia Brown, Ed Carson, Dorothy Fagan, Wil Payne, Richard Porter, Patricia Rinehart, Teddie Jo Ryan, John Alan Stock, and Georgia Syrax.

Three Richmond architects will be featured in the large gallery. The exhibition is on loan from the Valentine Museum in Richmond and shows details and photographs of the splendid residences designed under the influence of the Beaux Arts Movement.

The exhibition is open free of charge to the public daily except Sunday from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Beach hospital gets donation

Virginia Beach General Hospital has received a $8,500 donation from the local civic organization, Dolphin Circle of King's Daughters.

Dolphin Circle member Marianne Matson said the money was generated by sales resulting from the 1976 edition of "The Virginia Beach Cookbook," published by the circle.

Matson said $6,450 will be given to the pediatrics unit of the hospital for equipment, with the remainder "to be used to buy carpeting for crib wards, playrooms; and to buy wagons with high wooden sides, used to transport patients."

Kempsville High plans reunion

The Kempsville High School class of 1970 is planning a reunion June 21 from 8 p.m. - 1 a.m. at the Commodore Country Club in Virginia Beach.

For information, contact Dee Newman at 421-3488, Teresa Hughes at 482-3556, or Elaine Jenkins at 420-8276.

Thoughts of yesterday, today

Many Virginia Beach residents now talk of war, or the possibility of it.

Many of them know not the horrors of prior wars and battles, others do not.

Below is an inspirational poem, published in a North Carolina newspaper the day President Truman announced Japan's surrender.

Although the lines are 35 years old, they convey a feeling still esteemed by many, many Americans: Peace.

"Victory Universal"

And now that all the fighting's done,
And bells of peace are ringing

And Victory is made complete,
And Angels high are singing,
We look to God with grateful praise,
And with sincere thanksgiving,
And pray to Him for Endless days
Of Happy, peaceful living.

We pray that we may understand
And love all men as brothers,
We pray that now in every land
There'll be true thought of others;
We pray that one great Christian plan
Will keep the world united,
And working hard, as one strong man -
To build where war has blighted.

May peace prevail throughout the world,
Let earth have no war madness,
May flags of peace be unfurled
And flying thin their gladness.
Let freedom reign on every throne,
Let reason rule the nations,
Let ne'er again a war be known
With all its tribulations.

I Needed The Quiet

I needed the quiet so He drew me aside,
Into the shadows where we could confide.
Away from the bustle where all day long
I hurried and worried when active and strong.

I needed the quiet that at first I rebelled
But gently, so gently, my cross He upheld
And whispered so sweetly of spiritual things
The weakened in body, my spirit took wings
To heights never dreamed of when active and gay.
He loved me so greatly He drew me away.

I needed the quiet. No prison my bed,
But a beautiful valley of blessings instead
A place to grow richer in Jesus to hide.
I needed the quiet so He drew me aside.

Exercise and Physical Fitness

Your Healthy Body

Janeda Janone,
Virginia Beach Professional
Dance and Exercise Instructor

Janeda discusses local residents questions, this week on tummy flattening and "saddlebags".

Dear Janeda,
I have tried several different "tummy flattening" exercises, but I don't seem to be getting results. The only significant change I have noticed is the ability to hold myself more erect and the strength to hold my tummy in. I have not been able to reduce the amount of fat in that area and was wondering if there might be more of a variety in the way of exercise for this particular problem. I am not overweight and would dearly love to rid myself of the extra padding in this spot. Thanks in advance for the suggestions.

Anne Brown
2237 Cannon Dr., Va. Beach

be quite enough in the beginning, and should always be preceded by the warm-up leg raises. Absolutely nothing can be gained, except injury, by jumping into a strenuous movement before the body has had a chance to warm up. Relax once more for a few moments and then turn onto your stomach. Reach behind with your right hand and grab hold of your right ankle. Inhale and lift the leg from the floor in an easy manner, exhale and lower. Repeat on the left side, and then again on the right, alternating for at least five times.

After this reach behind with both hands and grab hold of both ankles. Inhale, lift both legs, assuming the position of a bow, and gently rock the body back and forth like a rocking chair.

This gentle massaging will help to break down fat cells and bring needed blood to carry away the waste products. One more helpful hint might be to try using a loofa sponge for bathing as this increases spot circulation. Work with these suggestions, be patient and I'm sure you will be pleased.

Janeda

Dear Janeda,
I am trying to lose weight and have noticed that people who do lose weight without exercising properly end up with pouches of unsightly fat on each side of the thigh. I would really like to avoid having this happen to me, and thought perhaps you would know of something simple that has worked for others. Thanks a lot!

Kathy Connolly
836 Lamplight, Va. Beach.

Dear Kathy,
You are quite correct in your observations, and there are several relatively simple exercise to help avoid this excess baggage, sometimes called "saddlebags".

Sit on the floor with legs stretched out in front. Using your hands, lift your buttocks from the floor, tilt to the right and slap that part of the thigh to the floor gently but firmly. Alternate, first one side and the other for up to twenty repetitions. This gentle slapping will increase circulation and help break down cellulite.

Also, lie on your right side with your arms straight out as a rest for your head. Breathe in and raise your left leg slowly, exhale and lower slowly. Do not tilt your body to compensate for the shift in weight as you raise your leg as this will tend to somewhat destroy the effectiveness of this particular movement.

Repeat ten times on both sides. Lastly, try joining a structured dance class of whatever type may interest you, as dancing is one of the best preventative and corrective methods there is for this malady, and if you do you may just discover that your dieting and exercise has become recreation too. Enjoy!

Hostage issue

HCC breakfast at Beach well attended

By PAT FARRELL

The Hostage Crisis Center sponsored a hostage prayer breakfast on Saturday, Feb. 9, to provide Tidewater with its first opportunity for a mass public display of concern for the hostages being held in Iran.

The City of Virginia Beach was well represented at this meeting. Speakers included Virginia Beach City Councilman R.L. (Buddy) Riggs and prominent civic leader Mrs. Mary Barraco.

The Beach's Rock Church also provided support in the form of the dynamic Youth Minister, Bart Pierce, who provided religious comments on the crisis situation. Dr. Carl Bieber, Father James Dorson and Scottie Allen delivered more religious views.

Members of the audience included Meyera Oberdorf, J. Curtis Payne, Barbara Henley and representatives of the Marine Corps League and the Marine Corps League Auxiliary.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 392 presented the colors and led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Three Virginia Beach Police Officers attended, along with an estimated 350 other concerned citizens.

The Hostage Crisis Center can be reached by calling 428-8111, extension 42.

A petition drive will be held Feb. 13, at Military Circle.

Revenue sharing report open

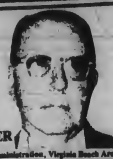

The City of Virginia Beach currently has available for public inspection a copy of the actual use report on general revenue sharing and anti-recession fiscal assistance funds and supporting data for the fiscal year July 1, 1978 to June 30, 1979.

The report may be reviewed at the City Finance Department, Virginia Beach Municipal Center, City Hall Building, Room 219 during the hours of 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Do You Know Your Local Business Community?"

BRUNSWICK PLAZA BOWL

Rose Stankewicz - Center Manager

Whether you're in a class with Dick Webber and Earl Anthony or are just learning to bowl, there simply isn't a better bowling lane throughout the area than BRUNSWICK PLAZA BOWL.

Located at 111 N. Plaza Trail, in Virginia Beach, phone 340-1313, the management at BRUNSWICK PLAZA BOWL welcomes both league and open bowlers. Their lanes never have those high boards or dead pins which drive bowlers up the wall. The automatic ball returns are always well-maintained.

An attendant, thoroughly knowledgeable in servicing ball returns, is always on hand. They are open Sunday through Thursday 9 a.m. to midnight; Friday and Saturday 9 a.m. to 1 a.m.

There are scratch and handicap leagues for both men and women and mixed teams. Call for information now, 40 million bowlers nationwide can't be wrong, when they insist that bowling is both a lot of fun and good exercise. They are now signing people up for their short season; call 340-1313. Also, they now offer an all-new service: Dial-A-Lane insures you will have a bowling lane.

After the game, set a spell in their well-stocked snack bar, or select a new bag, ball or shoes from their complete pro shop. They feature complete fitting and drilling service. The editors of "Do You Know Your Local Business Community?" give BRUNSWICK PLAZA BOWL our complete endorsement.

HAYNES WAREHOUSE SHOWROOMS

Furniture stores are forever having sales of one kind or another on various items. The trouble is that these "sales" usually only last for a few days or a week or only apply to a few selected items. What if you don't have the money that particular week or the sale is on a sofa, and you need a bedroom suite?

At HAYNES WAREHOUSE SHOWROOMS, the management does not believe in fancy sales slogans simply because at this fine furniture headquarters, EVERYTHING is discounted throughout the year!

Drop over to 5324 Virginia Beach Blvd. in Virginia Beach, or phone 497-9681, and you'll be literally astounded at the fine livingroom, diningroom, carpets and bedroom suites available at far less than what other stores are talking about.

Every item at HAYNES WAREHOUSE SHOWROOMS is strictly brand name merchandise. They prefer to make a modest profit on every sale to assure a large volume of repeat business from satisfied customers.

The editors of "Do You Know Your Local Business Community?" suggest that the best in furniture doesn't really cost more. Rely on HAYNES WAREHOUSE SHOWROOMS for low prices, tasteful furnishings and personalized service.

Today college counts

By RICHARD E. HOEHLIN

Special to the Sun

about the Arab-Israeli problem and problems in Turkey, Greece and Cyprus.

In another whole field, but one which also is of current interest, Judy Grace speaks on "Death and Dying." A counselor at TCC, she presents a professional and personal approach to the cultural, sociological and financial aspects of death.

Jerrine Green, an instructor in our Business Division, examines such things as the myths about women in management and what it takes for a woman to make it in the management world. Dennis Raper, association professor of history, enjoys speaking on "Colonial Virginia" and "The American Civil War." And Chester Riegle, associate professor of English, gives a poetry reading of his original work.

Sonenshine on energy

Back to more timely subjects, Helen N. Sonenshine, instructor in economics, can speak on both inflation and energy. Eldridge T. Plankey, history instructor, speaks on "U.S.S.R. Today" and "The History of China." Dr. John J. Sbraga, chairman of our Social Sciences Division, makes presentations on "American Foreign Policy" and "The United States Since 1945," along with several other subjects.

If these subjects are not suitable for your organization or club or if you are interested in the whole Speakers Bureau program, call our Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070, Ext. 113. We can mail you a copy of the catalog or try to schedule you a speaker.

Today college counts!

TCC offers Virginia Beach residents central listing of current lecturers

Recently we issued a new Speakers Bureau catalog here on the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College. Such timely subjects as "The Middle East" and "International Relations in the Middle East" are included in the new catalog.

The purpose of the Speakers Bureau is to provide area businesses, organizations, schools and churches with a source for guest speakers, free of charge. The Speakers Bureau is just one of the many community services we offer here at TCC.

In all more than 100 topics ranging from "Death and Dying" to "Women in Business" are listed in the catalog. Close to 50 professors participate in the program.

Among the is E.J. "Bud" Fredericks, Dr. Fredericks, a history professor at TCC, also teaches part-time at Old Dominion University. He has a background in Arabic Studies and Islam and holds his doctorate in international relations.

10 years with American Embassy

Dr. Fredericks spent 10 years with the American Embassy in the Middle East - in Turkey, Lebanon, Egypt and Syria. He stays up-to-date by participating in organizations as the World Affairs Council of the Greater Hampton Roads area which brings in guest speakers from various embassies in Washington.

Dr. Fredericks has spoken this year mainly on Iran and Afghanistan. At times, to make his talk more meaningful, he has taken some of TCC's Iranian students to the meetings with him to present their point of view. In the past, Dr. Fredericks also has spoken

"Anyone can measure snow," Ritter said.

"It's a simple process. All you need is a ruler or yard stick, and snow."

"Just be sure to separate any snow already on the ground from the fresh snow falling."

The preceding measurements were supplied by Ritter.

Beach proposal passes nine to zero

McCoy also cast the only vote against the 17th Street restaurants in a 10-1 vote of Council. That contract was awarded to Ingham & Associates for $145,300 several years ago, but inflated prices would make the cost considerably higher today.

McCoy pointed out that the Council had refused to close 31st Street to help the Amusement Park.

Councilman R.L. Riggs agreed with McCoy and said Council was making "a complete solid wall (on the beachfront) by closing the streets."

McCoy said the city should look for property away from the beachfront.

Councilman John A. Baum said that nobody has come up with alternatives. "You're not getting any cheap land that will be convenient to people."

Ervin said he knew he could "come up with satisfactory restaurants for less money."

Councilwoman Meyera Oberdorf said she was a proponent of the restaurants but would like to look at other cheaper ways to do it.

Assistant to the City Manager, Giles Dodd, sitting in for City Manager George L. Hanbury, said that one of the stipulations made by the adjoining property owner in exchange for giving up his claim on the road, was that restaurants would be built according to the plans presented.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that he would want some insurance of what the restaurants would look like if he owned the adjoining property.

Voting against the closure were Ervin, McCoy, Riggs and George R. Ferrell. Voting against the contract award were McCoy, Riggs and Ervin. Councilmen Clarence A. Holland and Donald Merrick were absent.

Golf course-condo deferred

A golf course-condominium complex which has encountered continued deferrals since it was first proposed before the Virginia Beach Planning Commission last July, has been deferred again.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon deferred for 90 days the application of Sandbridge Road Enterprises for a conditional use permit for a golf course on a 240-acre parcel on the east side of Atwoodtown Road, east of the intersection with Lotus Drive.

Thomas Broyles, attorney for the partnership, said that he would apply for rezoning from agricultural to duplex zoning for the area of the property where the homes will be located. He would continue to ask for a conditional use permit for the golf course which will take up 150 acres of the property.

The Planning Commission and Council had considered ordinances which would have permitted the development. The ordinances, denied by City Council Monday afternoon in concurrence with recommendations of the Planning Commission and Planning Department, would have permitted the golf course area to be considered in computing the overall density so that the lot sizes could be reduced to 10,000 square feet. Sandbridge Road Enterprises plans to build 120 duplexes.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said she couldn't see residences as a subsidiary use to a golf course, as proposed in one of the ordinances nor could she see how 10,000 square foot lots can be permitted in an area where owners of three acres are sometimes not permitted to build.

Richard Webbon, representing the Council of Civic Organization, said that the Council wants to maintain good size lots.

Councilman Reid Ervin pointed out that the 150 acre tract will be dedicated in perpetuity as a golf course.

Webbon said the Council objected to buildings which would be constructed on the golf course.

Council apparently was favorable to the golf course-condominium idea but reluctant to pass ordinances or establish precedent which might hurt the area.

Councilman John A. Baum said that he had the biggest problem with agriculture zoned property having residential uses. "This will kill the agricultural industry as well as any other approach."

Fraley goes on the road

Richard Fraley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fraley, was among the 45 members of the Freed-Hardeman College Choral to go on tour in early January. Performances were scheduled in Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, along with an appearance at the Christian College Choral Festival in Lubbock, Texas. Choral, the college's largest singing group, performs unaccompanied sacred music. Most of their concerts are presented in churches where the congregations are particularly impressed with their renditions of spirituals and hymns. Freed-Hardeman is a fully accredited, senior Christian college.

agricultural, business and residential designations to R-6 Residential District (229.4 acres); R-5 Residential District (73.5 acres) and B-2 Community-Business District (2.3 acres). The existing zoning allows 198 single-family homes and commercial development while the proposed zoning would allow 1,020 single-family homes and commercial development.

Grover Wright, attorney for Lakeside, said that the applications were intended to "get rid of 174 business acres and end up with R-4 and R-6."

The Planning Commission recommended approval of the rezoning and the borrow pit.

Concerns of the Council are that the borrow pit is located to the side of the proposed development with insufficient space around it for housing, that the city has no definite dates for the construction of Ferrell Parkway which will be needed for the development and that approximately 130 acres zoned for business is larger than Lynnhaven Mall.

"We should find out what he's going to do with it," Councilman J. Curtis Payne Jr. suggested at an informal session before the regular Council meeting.

At the formal meeting Payne suggested deferring the application for a few weeks. "We don't want to go to R-6 (the most dense of the rezoning requests). We're wondering what we do want."

Councilman John A. Baum said he was bothered about the borrow pit. A 100-foot strip around the pit will leave no room for houses which ordinarily insure maintenance of a borrow pit area. Council is concerned that the city would be left with the maintenance.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf was concerned that taxpayers would be committed to the earlier construction of Ferrell Parkway when other roads are more essential.

Baum said, "We need to see this whole thing put together." He said the borrow pit would be a step backward. "It sounds like the city will be stuck."

Councilwoman Barbara Henley pointed out that the comprehensive plan calls for four units per acre development north of Ferrell Parkway and two units per acre south of the Parkway and wondered how the density is calculated. If the business zoned property were included to bring down the density to the recommended levels no consideration is being given to the impact business development would have on the area, she said.

Council may get all its answers at the work session on March 3 at 1 p.m.

Parking contract awarded

A.S.B. Co., Inc., has been awarded the contract to build the Municipal Parking facility at 19th Street and Pacific Avenue and the demolition contract for Fuel-Feed and Trailways sites for $14,600.

The bid was the lowest of seven and compared to the engineer's estimate of $65,000.

The gap between the bid and the estimate was attributed to a provision for the bidder to keep salvageable building materials from the demolition.

TCC offers humanities program

This year, for the first time at the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College, students in the Humanities Division are part of our Cooperative Education program.

Cooperative education combines a work-for-pay experience with academic study to give our students a more meaningful education. Traditionally, students in the business and public service technology divisions have been the only ones involved in cooperative education.

This fall, however, Chuck Fritz, who teaches English in the Humanities Division, joined the cooperative education staff as faculty coordinator for humanities.

He is in the process of building that portion of our program and we hope to have many students out in the community working areas which involved such things as art, education or social services.

This fall, Mr. Fritz had six humanities students in the cooperative education program. Ten students are participating this winter and he hopes for 12-15 in the spring.

Several of them have been, or currently are, in the work-study program on campus. They work in our learning lab in areas such as photography, video taping and brochure design.

Others have worked off campus in a variety of jobs which range from creating window displays in a department store, to a teacher's aide in an elementary just live on the island. I have been told that they are the only wild jack rabbits east of the Mississippi River but I don't know that for a fact.

Another source told me that the reason that jack rabbits don't exist east of the Mississippi River is that foxes can get into their burrows and eat the young and on Cobb Island there aren't any foxes so the rabbits can exist. I don't really know what to believe except they are there.

If you have any input as to why the rabbits exist on Cobb or have seen them please drop me a line. Maybe they will believe both of us.

school, to editing and writing a monthly newsletter.

Participation in the Cooperative Education program is optional. But students are not considered for the program until they have successfully completed a stated minimum number of academic credits relevant to their curriculum and are able to demonstrate the qualities necessary for beginning employment in the related area of study. Students must work five hours to get one hour of credit. They can earn five credits per quarter up to a maximum of 15 credits toward our two-year associate arts degree.

The philosophy behind cooperative education is based on the principle that practical experience in work compatible with the academic curriculum can add relevance to the student's education.

At the same time, we think employers can benefit from the availability of potential employees who have been well trained. We also hope our program creates better communication and mutual understanding between the college and business and industry.

Mr. Fritz keeps a current list of humanities students who are interested in participating in our Cooperative Education Program. If your business would be interested in having a humanities student working in its office, call our Office of Cooperative Education at 427-3070.

Beach travelers urged to take shorter route

Virginia Beach drivers traveling the East Coast this winter can take advantage of a shortcut that averages 38 per cent less snow than the alternate route.

Not only is the coastal route - U.S. 13 and the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel - 95 miles shorter than inland route 1-95 between Wilmington, Del. and Norfolk, Va., but it also has a history of less snowfall.

Over the past ten years, the U.S. National Climatic

Center reports show an average annual snowfall of 8.82 inches along the coastal route, versus 14.1 inches on the inland route.

In addition to adding hazards and hassles to winter driving, the difficult driving snow causes slows you down and guzzles gas. Drivers are wise to avoid snowy routes whenever possible.

Present at the presentation, (l - r) included: Nancy Vaughan, 4-H extension agent; F. Thornton, Virginia Realty; Raleigh Saunders, Shaw Barton Inc., and Mary Lynn Perney, 4-H extension agent.

4-H extension service presents award

The Virginia Beach 4-H cooperative extension staff recently presented a certificate of special recognition to W.F. Thornton of Virginia Realty Inc. Norfolk recognizing Thornton's contribution to 4-H.

"Thornton provided large 4-H Promotional Calendars which were placed in offices of 4-H supporters," a spokesman said.

"He also provided a 4-H Leaders Calendar for all volunteer leaders to help them in their yearly planning of 4-H Programs in their clubs."

Criminal law seminars set for Beach

By ANNABELLE MINTER

Special to the Sun

Richmond - A discussion of search and seizure laws by Maryland Special Appeals Court Judge Charles E. Moylan, Jr., will open proceedings at two Virginia State Bar-sponsored Criminal Law Seminars, Feb. 22 at the Fredericksburg Sheraton Motor Inn and Feb. 29 at the Virginia Beach Sheraton Motor Inn. The annual seminars are conducted by the State Bar's Criminal Law Section.

Another feature of the seminars will be luncheon addresses by two widely-known Virginians, newspaper columnist Charles McDowell and Norfolk City Manager Julian F. Hirst. McDowell will appear at the Fredericksburg seminar, while Hirst will deliver his address at the Virginia Beach program.

Moylan will open both seminars at 9:15 a.m. with a lecture on "Search and Seizure," a topic designed to examine the law surrounding this highly controversial area as they have developed through the years, with a particular emphasis on U.S. Supreme Court decisions in this area in recent years.

Moylan, a nationally-recognized authority on search and seizure laws, has served as an Associate Judge of the Maryland Court of Special Appeals since 1970. He has lectured to judicial and bar groups in more than 40 states on search and seizure, trial tactics and evidence, and is the author of several books and journal articles on the subject.

'Outstanding prosecutor'

Chosen in 1969 as the "Outstanding Prosecutor in America" by the National District Attorneys Association, Moylan served as State's Attorney for the City of Baltimore from 1964-70.

McDowell, who serves as Washington correspondent for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, is a graduate of Washington & Lee University and the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism. A nationally syndicated columnist, McDowell has covered all national political conventions since 1952 and is a regular participant on the Public Broadcasting System program, "Washington Week in Review."

Hirst, former Executive Director and President of the Virginia Municipal League and a Past Vice-Chairman of the Virginia Council on Criminal Justice, has served as Norfolk's City Manager since 1975. A graduate of Virginia Military Institute, he is a former Town Manager of Pearisburg and Pulaski, and a former City Manager of Martinsville and Roanoke.

Two and Two Make Sex

By YVONNE OVER

Special to the Sun

Two and two make four? Absolutely. But not in this frolicking British farcical comedy written by Richard Harris and Leslie Darbon entitled "Two and Two Make Sex."

When a forty-eight year old family man, suffering from an identity crisis, decides to have an affair with a much younger woman, they find that their arithmetic just doesn't add up.

Clare suspects George of infidelity when his life style changes radically, but wrongly assumes that he's visiting a psychiatrist to alter his errant behavior.

The fun starts when she decides to have an affair with the psychiatrist, not realizing that the psychiatrist is the "other woman's" boyfriend.

No adultery

During the two hours traffic on the stage, no one actually commits adultery — in fact, they find the "idea" of infidelity more satisfying than the actual deed.

To complicate matters, Clare's best friend, who writes a Dear Abby column, offers unsolicited advice to all concerned and is generally wrong. As if this weren't enough to boggle the characters, George discovers that his best friend is the father of his newfound love.

With true British aplomb, all six characters manage to get each other's identity confused.

Two and two may not equal four in this comedy, but it adds up to a night of fun.

The show will be running Feb. 12 through March 16. For more information, contact Yvonne Over at (804) 461-2933.

Arts program

Creative adventures set for talented Beach kids

By CHERYL COOPER

Special to the Sun

The Creative Adventure, funded for a second year in Virginia Beach, is designed to expose students in Princess Anne, Cooke, Lufkin, Aragona and Alanton Elementaries to a seven week intensity program of performing arts.

Designed and partially funded by the Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences, the program will be coordinated by key artist, John Hornaday, theatre specialist, and associate artist, Greg Donovetsky, oboist, with support in dialogue presentations from "One, Two, Three, MIME" and the "Virginia Woodwind Quintet."

Receiving the core of the program will be one class, or control group, at each school. The students in these classes will be involved in the entire creative process, from writing a poem to be choreographed to putting on their own performance with dramatic movement, props, costumes, lighting and background sounds at the end of the project.

The artists will assist and prepare them for the performance, drawing from concepts discussed during the project.

Other classes at each school will receive exposure to the Creative Adventure through a workshop by "One, Two, Three, MIME" and the "Virginia Woodwind Quintet." They will also be invited to attend the final

For Hostages

Beach girl raises $624

By GREG GOLDFARB

Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Virginia Beach resident Patty Gahagan, by herself, raised $624 in four days to show her support of the American hostages in Iran.

She said her fund raising actions were spurred by the recent advent of the Beach based Hostage Crisis Center (HCC), directed by former P.O.W. Mike Christian.

"I knew the crisis center was in operation," Gahagan said, "so I called Mike and told him I had raised some money and was going to man a booth in Military Circle to give out bumper stickers, information packets, and petitions for those people who wanted to show their support of the hostages."

"I went around to local businesses and asked for their donations and support and I got it."

Contributors to the fund raising campaign included: Phillips Oldsmobile, Virginia Beach; Wilkins Chevrolet, Norfolk; Colonial Chevrolet, Norfolk; Hoff Cadillac, Virginia Beach and Checkered Flag Toyota, Virginia Beach. All six dealerships donated $50 each.

In addition, Morris Family Bakery, Virginia Beach, contributed $20; Tidewater Macke, Norfolk, $75; Kempesville Automotive Supply, $10, and Kempesville Pharmacy, $20, both in Virginia Beach; Allied Van Lines, Norfolk, $50; and Arrowhead Auto Parts, Norfolk, $20.

Let our people go

Gahagan said the money she raised, and the money she raises over the three days she mans the "Let Our People Go" booth at the mall will be used to pay for 10,000 bumper stickers, hundreds of small paper American flags and long distance phone calls.

Military Circle does not charge non-profit organizations to use the booth in the mall, per se, according to Gahagan, but does require a dollar a day rental fee for the use of the booth, and restricts its use to one day at a time.

Gahagan has reserved Friday, Feb. 22, and Friday 29 in the mall to give out more stickers, and hostage support materials.

Christian is satisfied

HCC director Mike Christian said he's pleased to see people, like Gahagan, take the initiative to carry out such a project.

"What Patty has done is wonderful," Christian said.

"It's very important not to let the hostages be forgotten. Efforts such as this will help to keep the issue alive in American's minds."

"Also, it further serves to illustrate what the purpose of the HCC is: To allow people, such as Patty, to have somewhere to go for support, and to have an organization to fall back on, in her individual efforts to display her patriotism."

"This whole thing in the mall is her idea. I had nothing to do with producing it. I think it's great."

But one of the things Christian thinks is not as great, in regard to the booth, is the support of the people in the mall for it.

"Even though she raised almost $100 in donations, in the first day," he said, "look at all the people in the mall walking right by the booth, and not even looking at the information or taking the flags, or bumper stickers."

"There should be a pack of people here. Maybe more will stop by next time."

Beach residents learn

Rabbits, quail locally

By ED LEWIS

Virginia Beach Sun Outdoor Writer

Last week I told you that I had heard that the Jack Rabbits on Cobb Island had been put there by Harvey Bowen of Willis Warf, Va. approximately 15 years ago. Well, this week I finally was able to get in touch with Mr. Bowen and he told me how it all began.

Twenty years ago Harvey had read an advertisement in Field & Stream where you could order live rabbits to help stock your land. Well, Harvey, who had wanted to start a new strain of rabbit in the area wrote to the company, which was in Rango, Kansas, and ordered six cotton tail rabbits.

Out of cottontails

A Mr. Earl Johnson called Harvey from Rango and told him that he was out of the cottontails but could send him six jack rabbits instead, so Harvey accepted the substitute.

When Harvey received his order, he found that he had eight rabbits instead of six and a couple of them were carrying young. Harvey carried the rabbits out to Cobb Island, where they have flourished ever since.

The eight jack rabbits seemed to adapt to the small island very well and being true to the species they multiplied rapidly. Within four years the island was loaded with them; and after a while the herd became diseased. Harvey said he did not know what caused the disease, but they had found a lot of dead rabbits over a short period of time.

After a while the rabbits seemed to develop an immunity to the disease and again began to flourish.

The main enemy of the rabbits today is hunters and the heavy surf of the Atlantic Ocean which is eating away at Cobb Island and threatening to cut it in half. Jack Rabbits weren't the only game the Harvey Bowen introduced to the Barrier Islands. He also (See HATTERAS, p. 4)

By HARVEY RIDINGER

Field Representative, Social Security Administration, Virginia Beach Area

Childhood disabilities allow handicapped adults to receive SS benefits

Over one-third of a million Americans receive social security benefits because they have severe disabilities which began in childhood and which keep them handicapped as adults.

Many families with persons disabled since childhood are able to take care of the additional expense of caring for them. But when the family's regular income is reduced or stopped because of retirement, disability or death, the burden sometimes becomes too great. When this happens, the social security benefits paid to the disabled person can often mean the difference between care at home and care in an institution.

Each month, millions of dollars in benefits help lighten the financial burden for these families. And there is the security of knowing that the benefits will continue to be paid, even if both parents should die.

Who is eligible?

When a person becomes entitled to retirement or disability benefits or dies after having worked under social security long enough for benefits to be payable, his or her children (including adopted children, stepchildren, and in certain cases grandchildren) may receive monthly benefits.

Normally, a child's payments stop at 18 (or 22 if attending school full time.) However, a child's payments may continue indefinitely - or start at any age - if the child has a severe physical or mental impairment which began before 22 and which keeps the child from doing any substantial gainful work as an adult.

It is not necessary for a person disabled since childhood to have worked under social security. Benefits are paid on the basis of the father's or mother's social security work record. In cases where the child was in the care of a grandparent, it is possible benefits may be paid on the basis of the grandparent's social security work record.

Just as for other kinds of social security benefits, someone must complete an application before payments can start. Sometimes the disabled person can handle money and can apply for benefits. More often, however, someone else represents the disabled person and receives benefits for him or her.

Ordinarily, a parent or other relative with whom the disabled adult is living, or who has a strong interest in the disabled person's welfare, is chosen to receive the benefits. In some cases, a legal guardian or representative of an institution or nonprofit agency is named to manage the funds.

Evidence is needed

Before payments can be made, medical evidence is needed which shows:

- That the person now has a severe disability;
- That the impairment began before 22 and has continued; and
- That there is little likelihood for improvement in the near future.

The evidence will usually include a report from the family doctor or from an institution where the person is a patient. In some cases, other information - such as school records or social agency records - may be needed.

Proof of the disabled person's age and proof of relationship to the worker are also necessary. Usually a birth certificate will show both age and relationship. If the disabled person's benefits are based on a stepparent's social security record, the marriage certificates of the parents and stepparents are required. When an application is made for an adopted child, other proofs will be necessary which the people in the social security office will explain.

If you need help in obtaining medical or other evidence, the people in the social security office will be glad to help you.

The Norfolk office is located in the Federal Building, Room 600, 200 Granby Mall. The phone number is 441-3401.

Begin March 24

Spring quarter classes begin March 24 and they continue through May 31. One quarter requires less of a long-term commitment than a semester. This makes it easy for a busy person to take a class for the pure enjoyment of learning.

We also try to make it convenient for Virginia Beach residents by holding some of our classes at locations other than our main campus in the Green Run area. We hold night classes at Lynnhaven Junior High School and at Kempsville Junior High and at both Oceana and Little Creek Naval bases.

Most of the art classes are taught at our Camp Pendleton Center off General Boethe Blvd. Many of our drawing and painting classes meet there as do our ceramics and photography classes.

We also have classes in scattered surroundings. For instance, during spring quarter, we are teaching a seminar in career planning for women at the Oceanfront Branch Library. That class will take place on Tuesday mornings from 10 a.m. until noon. If the main campus is more convenient for you, you can take the seminar on Tuesday evenings from 7:15 to 9:15.

We also have a wide variety of other course offerings. Our traditional liberal arts classes, meet the standards acceptable for transfer to baccalaureate degree programs.

Our occupational technical programs are planned to meet the needs of workers in the Virginia Beach area. If you want to enhance your abilities at work, you could choose from such things as a course in business letter writing, introduction to data processing or shorthand.

Exercise and Physical Fitness

Your Healthy Body

Janeda Jansson,
Virginia Beach Professional
Dance and Exercise Instructor

This week Janeda discusses the benefits of exercise; and how to firm the flabby tummy after having children.

Dear Janeda,

I've been actively involved in exercise and dance for over a year now and have noticed a great many more benefits to be gained from this sort of activity than what appears at first glance. I thought it might be nice if you would mention some of these extra advantages for the benefit of those who are trying to make up their minds whether or not to become involved in such a program.

Cindi O'Hara
Gossman Rd., Va. Beach

Dear Cindi,

I will be happy to elaborate briefly on some of the advantages to be gained from making a commitment to this form of self improvement.

The benefits can vary a great deal according to the individuals physical and mental make-up and just exactly what the individual is looking to gain from his or her efforts. Generally speaking, in addition to the obvious physical benefits of toning and strengthening muscles, one becomes more mentally aware of his own body and how to care for it in the best possible way. This includes not only exercise, but also what it needs in the way of a balanced diet, consideration of the fact that, although it is a wonderful mechanism, it is still vulnerable to all kinds of mishaps and needs to be protected, and, what to do to help it become more attractive.

Also, as one becomes more adept at handling his own body, he finds poise and self confidence beginning to develop and express itself. Attributes such as patience sometimes will flower when a person becomes aware of his limitations and realizes that these are the areas that need to be worked on slowly. The list could go on, but anything else would only prove to reaffirm in a different way, what has already been said.

Learning to work with ones body is what I consider to be a very personal experience and an opportunity for inner growth. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, so stick with it Cindi, you've past the point in time where you should be seeing very tangible results.

Janeda

Theatre review

Sun Editorial: "Mame"

Whenever a group of Virginia Beach residents get together to put on an amateur play, one must give the ambitious troop an "A" for effort.

But sometimes, the group may be too large for the playing area of the theatre, which is one of the shortcomings of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's recent production of the musical comedy "Mame".

Musicals should be lively, fast paced and tight. Comedy, as with music, is dependent on perfect timing. Several times during "Mame," however, performers were left on stage, static, watching another player sing. This serves to make the performance uneven. Players on stage as spectators are also a distraction.

Musicals, as with all plays, must serve as an escape for the audience; with an eventual purging of emotions at the end. To achieve this goal, the play must be fluid; running from start to finish like a finely tuned car. But the overall rhythm of "Mame" is sporadic, which was caused by some performers making late entrances, and fewer of them, dropping lines. These traditional flaws in ordered bobwhite (quail) and pheasant for the island but they didn't do as well as the jack rabbits. I have seen both on the island but none in any great quantity.

Harvey told me that he believed that the high tides during the northeasters either drowned most of the quail or drove them over to the mainland.

The pheasant have spread to some of the other islands as well as the mainland. Hunters have been their greatest enemy, by not giving them a chance to build up a large enough flock.

Ice fishing anyone?

On the fishing scene things are still a little slow. Otis Nelson told me that the river is still iced over down at the Northwest River Campgrounds, but the warmer weather that is forecast for this week should alleviate this problem and make for some excellent crappie fishing. I am off next weekend and if the ice is gone I will be there.

most amateur productions are expected, especially during the first few nights of a run, but rarely excused near the end of one.

Costumes were adequate, and the lighting questionable considering the potential of the orderly array of lights overhead.

Individual performances by area Suzanne Marlow as "Agnes Gooch," and Dave Jones as "Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside," were among highlights of the particular performance this reporter saw.

Logistically, incorporating a small orchestra in the theatre is tough. But being heard even from behind the flats in the backstage area, they were effective.

Directing a cast of almost 60 people on the relatively small thrust stage, Mac Manus sought to undertake a grandiose play in not such a grandiose facility with a cast of varying degrees of talent.

But, observed in the proper perspective: A local production by amateur performers. "Mame" is another feather in the VBLT's cap. G.G. commercially prepared baby food with baby food that could be prepared at home.

Fresh vegetables, fruits, poultry and beef stew were just some of the foods which went into the blender to produce baby food products which were then compared with the same foods available on grocery store shelves. Although a little hesitant at first, students used the taste test as one criteria to choose their food preferences.

Also considered was the nutritional value and cost of each item. The homemade baby food far surpassed the commercial foods in all three categories including taste, nutritional value and cost.

Death and society offered at TCC

Death and society

If you haven't got the time to sign up for the full quarter, you might be interested in an intensive, three-day credit course in Death and Society. This will be taught between the winter and spring quarters. The course will take place on March 19, 20 and 21 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. In addition to the three days of class time, there will be a class project. Participants will examine the attitudes and practices of American Society and other cultures toward death.

Whatever you want to take this spring, we also try to make it easy for you to register. On-campus registration is taking place through March 21. We also will hold special registrations on March 11 from 5-7 p.m. at the Lynnhaven Junior High and on March 13 from 5-7 at Kempville Junior High. Registration at Oceana will take place on March 3 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. in the NCA office and at Little Creek on March 3 from 3:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m. in Bldg. 3005.

Tuition for in-state students is $8.50 per credit hour for part-time students who are taking 11 hours or less.

Full-time Virginia residents pay $100 per quarter. For those who are registering for the first time, there is a $5 application fee, payable only once.

If you would like a copy of our spring schedule, you may pick up one at your Admissions and Records office on campus or you may get a copy through the mail by calling that office at 427-3070.

Commonwealth of Virginia In re: Tripten Wayne Harris and Lena Maria Harris

ORDER OF PUBLICATION The object of this proceeding is the termination of the residual parental rights of Harry Harris and Sharon Harris to their children Tripten Wayne Harris & Lena Maria Harris. The consequences of termination of residual parental rights are that a parent or parents forever relinquish all parental rights such as, but not limited to, the rights to companionship, association, religious training, education, discipline, guidance, maintenance and all decision making concerning the child's welfare. And further it is to commit said infant to the care and custody of the Virginia Beach Department of Social Services with the right of said agency to consent to the infant's adoption.

And an affidavit having been made and filed that Harry Harris and Sharon Harris is a proper party to this proceeding; but due diligence has been used to ascertain in what county or corporation he is, without effect, it is ORDERED that Harry Harris and Sharon Harris do appear here within 10 days after due publication hereof, and do what may be necessary to protect their interest in this suit.

Virginia Beach students get make-up information

Local make-up artist Carol Gustafson talks with students from Virginia Beach high schools at the city's first "fashion merchandising fair" held recently at Green Run High School. The fair allowed the distributive education students, who had already selected fashion merchandising as a career, to talk with local experts about facets of the field, including job prospects and experience necessary.

Families conference set

By DORIS CAMPBELL, EXTENSION AGENT

In preparation for the 1980 White House Conference on Families an open forum will be held on Feb. 27, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Red Cross Building, 611 Brambleton Avenue, Norfolk. The purpose of the forum is to provide an opportunity for Tidewater citizens to:

- Respond to specific issues and/or recommendations in the State Task Force reports presented at the Virginia Conference on Families in November, 1979.
- Provide recommendations believed important concerning the needs of families.

It should be noted that the results of the hearing will not alter the State "Interim Report: Task Force on Families." However, all written comments, concerns or points of view presented by witnesses at the forum will be submitted unaltered as an addendum to the State report.

All interested citizens are invited and encouraged to freely express verbal or written views concerning the family. A copy of the "Interim Report: Task Force on Families" is available for viewing at local libraries and local Virginia Cooperative Extension Service Offices.

For more information call or write: Coordinator: Dr. Will Bazemore, 1600 Great Bridge Boulevard, Chesapeake, Va. 23320, or local Virginia Cooperative Extension Services: Doris Campbell, Virginia Beach - Sue Jones, Norfolk - Linda Rubin, Portsmouth - and Vera Keeble, Chesapeake.

Forensics winners named

By JOE LOWENTHAL

Special to the Sun

Winners in the various Beach District high school forensics events held at First Colonial High School on Feb. 13, will compete in regional activities on March 5 at Indian River High School in Chesapeake.

They will compete there with winners in the Eastern District and Southeastern District.

The Virginia High School League has the overall responsibility for forensics, debate and one-act play competition. Winners of regional contests then compete for state honors in the same events.

In the forensics competition, students placing first and second at district level go on to compete in the regional activities. Beach District winners are:

Winners named

Spelling - Arlene Fontaneres, Kempville High, first; Mary Nelson, Cox High, second.

Girl's prose reading - Marti Pachey, Green Run High, first; Susan Bernick, Kempville High, second.

Boys' prose reading - Dan Greenberg, Cox High, first; Randy Harrison, First Colonial High, second.

Girls' extemporaneous speaking - Susan Barnhart, First Colonial High, first; Katrina Eike, Bayside High, second.

Boys' extemporaneous speaking - Scott Commander, Cox High, first; Elliot Kolodny, Kempville High, second.

Girls poetry reading - Katie Mellin, Kempville High, first; Pam Pearsall, First Colonial High, second.

Boys' poetry reading - Mitchell Myers, Green Run High, first; Doug Thornton, Kempville High, second.

Boys' original oratory - Gary Brevin, Kempville High, first; Ted Pethybridge, Princess Anne High, second.

Girls' original oratory - Paula Jeter, Bayside High, first; Jodie Rundle, First Colonial High, second.

The Beach District one-act play theatre festival will be held on Feb. 27 at Plaza Junior High School, with the regional Theatre Festival also being held at the same location on March 13.

The Beach District debate event will be held on March 22 at Green Run High School. The date and place of the regional competition in debate have not been announced.

Recreation commission minutes announced

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation Commission recently met on Feb. 13 in Kempville.

The following is an account of the minutes, as reported by Phyllis Maness, secretary:

The regular meeting of the Parks and Recreation Commission was held Feb. 13, at 3 p.m. at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center/Kempville. Mr. Whitehurst called the meeting to order in Mr. Rignano's absence. Mr. Holland offered the opening prayer. In attendance were: Mr. Whitehurst, Mr. Branch, Capt. Moore, Mr. Dorer, Mr. Holland, Mr. Jennings, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Payne, Mr. Schache.

B-ball tourney planned

Mr. Whitehurst mentioned to the members that the James K. Cole Marathon basketball tournament is coming up shortly and asked if they would like to buy an ad in the program. Members will be contacted to see if they want to participate in this.

Bike ways discussed

Ms. Ilene Fogarty from the planning department then presented a comprehensive plan of the bikeways. Some of her comments included:

- Recommendations by the planning department that civic leagues be asked where they want bike trails.
- Bikeway plans should be tied in with regional highway plans.

- There has not been an overall plan in the past and bike trails have been on an individual basis.
- There were 83,000 registered bikes in the city. 82 bike related accidents (Beach area was the highest percent of the accidents).

- Trying to link major areas with other major areas.
- Criteria was determined: Demand, safety, directness of routes, accessibility of routes and physical constraints.

- The existing system comprises: Class I (Independent) and class II (shared roadways) Class III (locally designated routes).

- The proposed concept would be to have a east-west connector throughout the city; arterial connectors; internal neighborhood routes.

Mr. Fogarty asked the members to contact her or the department with suggestions on the bike trails.

DOA seeks soil comments

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is seeking comments from the Virginia Beach residents on seven proposals for possible changes in the Nation's soil conservation programs.

An information meeting will be held at 10:00 a.m. at the County Emergency Operations Center, Forge Road, on March 10.

Great Neck Estates

Garden club beautifies section

By IVA HUNTER

Special to the Sun

The Great Neck Garden Club has worked long and hard on the beautification of the main entrance to Great Neck Estates. I am proud to announce that the final stage of permanent plantings took place this week, in time for Arbor Day, to be celebrated in Virginia Beach on Feb. 28.

The Landscape Services Division of Virginia Beach, with Mr. Henry Ruiz, as program coordinator, has been most helpful in advising the club on the most desirable plant materials to purchase that would be low in maintenance, withstand the elements, and deter vandals.

Holly, Liriope Selected

Chinese Holly, and variegated Liriope was planted by Ernie Clark and Bernice Schneider on Tuesday, while Mr. Ruiz advised club members on caring for the plants. Supervisor, John Midgett was at the sight. Much appreciation is given to these for their professional services.

The project has involved many months of planning, paper work, phone calls, and most of the fund raising money obtained at the one small bazaar held each year. The original project dates back several years, was torn down when Great Neck was made wider, and was without an entrance sign for 2 years.

Due to the late arrival of plant material, scheduled for mid November, and snow, snow and more snow, the club was concerned that the completion of this phase would come after the March 1 deadline for submitting reports to the Council of Garden Clubs for the HANDS (Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsor's project). But it didn't.

In the future, more residents will have an opportunity to assist in maintaining and grooming the area, because it does belong to everyone, and is meant to be enjoyed by all who live in the area. (Blossoming plants will be behind the wall.)

Croatian dunes priority in shore planning

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

City planners, property owners and civic league representatives have been given the unenviable task of finding a way to use beachfront property at Croatan which would not disturb the dunes.

Under the city's shore protection ordinance, property owners have to get a conditional use permit from city council for any dune disturbing activity.

Helen L. Foss has 2.5 acres in Croatan at the southeast intersection of South Atlantic Avenue and Maryland Avenue where she wants to construct five single-family homes. Her attorney told council Monday evening that "everything we get into is a dune disturbing activity."

A site plan prepared by Mrs. Foss' engineer, James R. Fox, proposes moving the dunes eastward so that the homes can be placed behind them.

City manager George L. Hanbury said the property is adjacent to Camp Pendleton and the public has used the area as a public beach. He said he would like Council to reconsider purchasing the property.

A plan for the city to purchase fragile beach areas has been turned down by Council.

The Planning Commission and Planning Department recommended denial of the use permit because the removal of the natural dune and the creation of an artificial dune approximately 170 feet seaward of the existing dune would be inconsistent with the intent of the Coastal Management Ordinance.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing said that he didn't want any action taken by Council to be tainted with an underlying intent of the city to purchase the property. In fact, Council did not seem receptive to purchasing the property at all.

Butler said that he would be glad to discuss alternate plans with the city planners and the civic leagues who oppose the permit.

Fox said to improve matters septic tanks serving the homes would be installed on property across Atlantic Avenue, also owned by Mrs. Foss.

Jim Kaiser, president of the North Virginia Beach Civic League, said that the local Shoreline Protection Ordinance is the only ordinance functioning. The shoreline bill being considered in the General Assembly "is being torn again in Richmond," he said. "The only thing we have between us and the dunes is the local ordinance."

He said that in contrast to North Virginia Beach, no effort has been made to develop the dunes at Croatan. He said dunes have to be developed before anything is built. "Any other plan would jeopardize the oceanfront."

Tom Aiken, representing the Croatan Property

Owners Association and the South Rudee Shores Civic League, said the residents oppose the permit although they would like to see the area developed into single-family residences. The plan as I understand it involves the elimination of the natural dunes and building new dunes closer to the ocean. "If council considers this minimal, it would be hard for me to imagine a case where the ordinance would apply."

Gary Pope, of the Rudee Shores Civic League, said that some of the dunes destruction has been caused by four-wheel vehicles, which are illegal. Another Ash Wednesday storm will take away any homes built there, he said.

Dr. John F. McCabe said he purchased property three weeks before the storm and 18 years after the storm the dunes are only half the size they were before. Two houses beside his were washed out to sea, he said, and all the families possessions were found at Sandbridge two days later.

Jean Johnson, a real estate agent, said she built one house for a lieutenant colonel with eight children who insisted on flattening the dunes and the house was washed away by the storm.

Councilman Donald Merrick suggested looking for proposals which would not destroy the dunes so that Mrs. Foss would not be denied the use of her property.

The application for a use permit was deferred for 30 days to allow time for the staff to consult with the owners and the civic leagues on possible solutions.

Oceana Boulevard project

Their attorney Frank Butler said they don't want to spend more than half the cost of the land to construct a standard city street along the site on Oceana Boulevard. The money would be deposited in the Oceana Boulevard project account.

In the past, Council included the condition with the application with no question. Monday, in light of the new court decisions, there was hesitation. The matter was deferred for two weeks and Councilman John A. Baum suggested that Council should discuss policies in executive session.

The Planning Commission recommended approval with the condition. The Planning Department recommended denial on the basis that it would promote a strip commercial pattern.

Gaston F. and Wilma A. Dough applied for a change of zoning from R-8 Residential District to A-1 Apartment District on a .34 acre parcel at the northeast intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Garcia Drive.

The Planning Commission recommended approval. Among the conditions, however, were right of way

Percy, 82, and Thelma, 80, Crist celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary recently at Mr. Guss's hairstyling salon in Princess Anne Plaza.

The "diamond" celebration was held for the Crist's following years of having both of their hair styled at Guss's. "I've been getting my hair fixed here for six years," Mrs. Crist, "and I love it." "And I do too!" Percy added. Anniversary gifts for the sweethearts included a corsage, boutonniere, and a counted cross-stitch. The party included cake, peanuts, punch and minis.

Suits result of city road requirements

improvements along Garcia Drive, including pavement widening, curb and gutter, sidewalk and drainage facilities and the cost of the design and construction of a standard city street along the frontage on Virginia Beach Boulevard to be deposited in the project account.

Richard Grimstead, attorney for Dough, objected to the two stipulations and this matter was deferred for two weeks also.

Recent court decisions have led to a reevaluation by Virginia Beach City Council of conditions it has routinely placed on rezoning applications.

As a result, two applications for rezoning were deferred for two weeks Monday evening to give Council time to determine what course of action it should follow.

The suits were concerned with road dedication and road improvements required of developers by the city.

In the Hilton vs Princess Williams County suit, the Virginia Supreme Court found that right of way dedication can be required only if the jurisdiction can show that the development makes the road necessary.

In the James City County vs Rowe suit, the Supreme Court found that developers can not be required to improve highways next to their subdivisions.

City manager George L. Hanbury said that the whole comprehensive plan would have to be looked at in light of the decisions. If the city is not in a position to accept the responsibility for constructing road next to a subdivision, he said, and if the owner does not accept the responsibility voluntarily, the application for rezoning should be turned down.

The children of Ying Mah - Linda Mah Ark, Rita Mah Whalen, Anna Ho Mah and Nancy Eng Mah -- applied for a change of zoning from AG-1 Agricultural District to B-2 Community-Business District on a 10.18 acre parcel on the west side of Oceana Boulevard, north of Dam Neck Road. They want to construct another Ying's Restaurant there (one is located in Norfolk).

In a related action, Council approved the application of Lone Star Industries, Inc., for a change of zoning from I-1 Light Industrial District to I-2 Heavy Industrial District on a 9.49 acre parcel on the south side of Norfolk and Southern Railway tracks east of Sykes Avenue.

Calvin Spain, attorney for the applicant, questioned the conditions recommended by the Planning Commission requiring a 300-foot drainage easement dedication and a 60-foot right-of-way dedication along the northern boundary for the future realignment of Southern Boulevard.

The applicant agreed to Councilman Donald Merrick's suggestion that no permanent improvements be placed on the 60-foot right of way for a period of 15 years. If the property is not needed for a road by that

Sign up to be a sleuth

More than 1500 children in Virginia Beach area public and private schools participated in the fall, 1979 MS READ-a-thon.

Called "Mystery Sleuths" because their reading helps raise funds for research that will help find the cure for Multiple Sclerosis, each child read an average of 13 books during the 4 to 6 week reading period. Many awards were given to those achieving specific goals, and some children received prizes when their names were selected in random drawings.

Any child in grades 1 through 8 who would like to know more about the program or would like to become a "Mystery Sleuth" in the Spring, 1980 MS READ-a-thon should call the Tidewater Chapter office of the Multiple Sclerosis Society at 461-7792. Official registration dates are March 10 through March 28 so call today!

Lung Asso. says thanks;

Awareness month announced

Dear Editor,

The Virginia Lung Association's Southeastern Region in Norfolk has for many years worked long and hard to bring better respiratory health to residents in the cities of Chesapeake, Norfolk and Virginia Beach. Our regional volunteers deserve as much credit as VLA staff for the many successful programs on lung health conducted locally.

We'd like to alert the public to the fact that March, 1980, is Lung Awareness Month in the VLA Southeastern Region as well as in the state of Maryland, Washington, D. C., and the entire Commonwealth of Virginia.

Our volunteers will be happy to answer questions on lung diseases, describe services provided by the lung association, and discuss current programs on lung diseases being conducted in the area.

This letter is our way of saying "thank you" to the volunteers who have given of their time and talents through the years to make possible smoking cessation clinics, life and breath clinics, better breathing programs, walk-a-thons, skate-a-thons and a long list of other activities too varied to mention. Lung disease patients in our region have benefited from VLA volunteers' generosity and concern.

Mr. Charles R. Grandy, III
President, VLA Southeastern Region

Love Is...

Love is...a tiny seed
God planted in the mind;
It blossoms into flowers
And makes a person kind.

Love is...compassionate
Has hope for those who fail;
Love is the effective,
Most Christ-like way of all

Love is...not resentful,
It readily forgives;
It brings great happiness
To those with whom it lives.

Love is...ever patient,
It's found in trustful hearts;
It is most unselfish,
The finest of all arts!

Love...like the sunshine —
It shines on good and bad,
It dissipates the darkness
And makes the whole world glad!

Love is...the childlike way —
Secure in Father's care,
For God is almighty
His love is everywhere!
His love is everywhere!

Fishing season picks up in area

By ED LEWIS
Virginia Beach Sea Outdoors Writer

For over a year now, I have been writing this column and bringing you up to date on what's biting and where to catch it. Hardly a week goes by that I don't have some good fishing news from Otis Nelson down at the Northwest River Camp Grounds.

Otis calls me each week to give me the good news, and the bad, and over a period of time I become familiar with the names of some of the regulars that seem to always catch fish no matter what the weather.

I have become so sure of these fishermen's ability out there on the river that I usually already have their names on my list, all I need from Otis is how many they caught.

This past Sunday I had the pleasure of seeing a couple of these anglers in action and even managed to wet a line myself. If Sunday's catch was any kind of indication as to what the 1980 fishing season has in store for me, it looks like I might have a good year.

On Saturday afternoon I received a call from Otis and he told me that Junior Gray wanted to go fishing with him on Sunday.

You could probably tell by last week's column that I had already caught the fishing bug, and with the excellent weather we had Saturday, and Sunday's forecast looking the same, I couldn't refuse the invitation. I asked Otis what equipment I needed and what time Junior wanted me down there.

I arrived at the Northwest River Campgrounds at 8 a.m. Sunday morning and even though the weather forecast was for sunny and a high near 70 the early morning air was still cold and the sky overcast.

I had never met Junior before but I had no trouble finding him. He and the "River Rat", Rowland Marshall, were standing by their boats which they had already loaded. The only thing missing was me and of course the fish.

Before getting underway I went inside the store and had Otis pick me a large lunch because Junior had plans of being out on the river all day and nothing makes me any hungrier than just that.

After getting underway it didn't take us long to get to Junior's favorite spot. He had a 35 HP Evenrude on a 15 ft flat bottom boat and I want to tell you it doesn't take him long to get from one spot to another if he has a mind to.

Seven lines at a time

The first place we tried was near the Northwest River Park. I asked Junior which one of the 12 telescopic fiberglass poles he wanted me to use and he handed me five. I thought he was kidding me at first until I saw him bait up seven and put them in the water.

He had seven rod holders attached to a piece of wood and it held the poles in a fan pattern. With his seven and my five poles, we covered an area about 30 to 40 feet wide.

For bait we used small shiners on a "Minni Jig". I waited to see how Junior was going to put the shinner on so I wouldn't be baiting wrong and noticed that he hooked them the same way I did for flounder by running the hook through the eyes. The minnow will live longer this way and give you a more natural action. Even after it dies the slow trolling will make it appear it is swimming.

By using an electric trolling motor, Junior maneuvered us slowly down the river, and it wasn't long before he picked up a speckle perch that probably weighed 3/4 pound. He said it was a small one but it looked pretty good to me. It was the first fish I had seen this year.

After we had been there 10 to 15 minutes, the "River Rat" arrived on the scene and it wasn't long before one of his five poles landed a nice one. Rowland stayed close by most of the day and during the slow times either he or Junior would be coming up with some comical remark or teasing one another. The "River Rat" would occasionally imitate some of the crows or other bird that happened to be sounding off at the time.

As we moved along slowly towards the North Carolina line, I began to realize how good of a sportsman Junior really was. If the fish that was boated was small, Junior handled it carefully while taking it off the hook and then would release it.

Of course he might have had an ulterior motive because when he released the fish he would always tell it to go back and tell its big brother what a nice man he was for letting him go. That might be the secret of Junior's success with fishing.

By mid-afternoon we had had enough. We had boated 22 nice speckles (crappie) and released half that many again because of their size. I saw alot of fishermen keeping fish alot smaller than the ones Junior and I released. It was quite obvious that alot of them were after numbers instead of some good eating.

I made my day when I landed a 1 lb. 10 oz. speckle. I told Junior that that fish along would have made the trip worthwhile for me. It was a real fight on that timber pole. I really got a kick out of it and believe that the fish wasn't the only one hooked. I had never paid much attention to freshwater fishing before but you can bet that I will be back. Junior even told me that this had been a slow day.

Other anglers that had done well down at the Northwest River on Sunday were Dick Gerin with 19 crappie, George Preedy and Willie Bridges of Chesapeake caught 30 crappie, Joe Templeton and Mike Nye of Chesapeake caught 5 bass, two of which weighed in at 2 1/4 pounds. Rowland "River Rat" Marshall loaded his cooler with 16 nice speckles.

Rowland also went on Thursday and caught 10 speckles and returned on Friday to catch 12 crappie and three bass.

On Saturday, Wallace Ferrile and Dave Puckett caught one bass and 12 crappie, Slim Mizell and Steve Reeding of Chesapeake caught 25 large crappie, Junior Gray boated 25 crappie, Rowland Marshall and W.N. Dean caught 20 nice crappie and C.R. Walter and Jim Ellis loaded up with 40 crappie, 5 bream and one catfish.

You can take it from me, you don't have to wait for summer time to go fishing. If you should go, give me a call and let me know how you did.

Council also denied Robert Letchworth his application for a change of zoning from R-7 Residential District to A-2 Apartment District on a .344 acre parcel at the northwest intersection of Winston Salem Avenue and Mediterranean Avenue. The parcel has been before Council for rezoning several occasions since 1974 and was denied each time.

Kempsville Road into program

Virginia Beach City Council is asking the State Department of Highways and Transportation to put Kempsville Road back into the highway program.

The $2.6 million project which was expected to be started next May has been dropped by the State for lack of funds.

Councilman George R. Ferrell remarked that the state was holding out for the four cents (additional tax on gas) and when they get it they'll build (the roads)."

Councilman proposes expanded disclosure laws

candidates for elected office and the members of their households to reveal real estate holdings in the city. Riggs wants to include all appointed officials and department heads of the city and to expand disclosure to all sources of private income and real estate holdings regardless of where it comes from.

He recommended that the sources only, not the amounts, be revealed so that those with modest incomes or very large incomes would not be discouraged from running for public office.

Riggs said that revealing sources of income will possibly prevent a conflict of interest.

Riggs distributed a letter containing his proposal to members of Council preceding the 5:30 p.m. informal session of Council but the matter was not introduced until the end of a long night session - Council delayed action on the ordinance presented by Riggs and suggested that Riggs and Councilwomen Barbara Henley, who said she had been doing some research on disclosure, work together on modifications of the ordinance.

Mrs. Henley suggested looking at modifications such as establishing minimums for incomes which should be reported from outside sources.

Councilman Reid Ervin said he agreed "on principle" and felt that the expansion of disclosure would increase public respect. He said that he voluntarily made the disclosures recommended by Riggs the first time he served on Council, but that there wasn't much support for the action at the time. He said there was some need for some confidentiality and suggested a compromise worked out by Riggs and Mrs. Henley.

Councilman John A. Baum asked, "What is it that's that broken that you're trying to fix? Where do you draw the line between public and private business?"

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. asked that when the matter came up again, Council should discuss it in open session.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf said she agreed with the ordinance. She said that the "day we took public office we abrogated private life." She had some questions about including minor children and bank certificates. She said that "some of us are embarrassed by the lack of funds, others by affluence."

Baum wanted to know what checks there would be to know that the disclosure is complete.

Mrs. Henley said that the disclosure doesn't have to get into the specifics of income. She said that although they are distasteful there are some things that have to be done to restore trust.

Councilman George R. Ferrell didn't like the idea at all. Ferrell won't have to be concerned with disclosure unless he decides to run for re-election this year. After the meeting he told reporters he wasn't going to run again.

Baum noted that the proposal was timed to come up during a political campaign. Riggs is running for re-election to Council in May.

Sciences museum considered

An allocation of $250,000 included in the Governor's budget and $100,000 already in hand will give Virginia Beach enough money to prepare all plans for the Museum of Marine Sciences.

The museum also has received its first contribution from a private agency, a $10,000 pledge from the Back Bay Wildfowl Guild.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday evening approved a resolution in appreciation of the pledge and presented it to Guild representatives Al Drescher and Fletcher Bryan.

Mac Rawls, coordinator for the museum, said the public strongly supports the museum. He has appeared before civic organizations and other groups and many have passed resolutions in support of the museum and others have endorsed the conception.

Rawls said the $250,000 in State support would make it possible to prepare all the plans for the project.

Plans are to locate the museum on city-owned property off General Booth Boulevard on Owl's Creek.
